Lane, Crawford, Ltd.TAKE CARE OF YOUR HANDS.

Winter for the hands spells roughness, and for many with household tasks to perform even black ingrained lines.

Keep a bottle of this lotion by you and you will never be troubled by roughness, which is the beginning of all other hand troubles. Mix slightly less than one ounce of glycerine and ten drops of carbolic with three ounces of rose-water, and immediately after washing and before drying the hands rub a little of the lotion into them.

Remember that the warmth or otherwise of your feet determines the tint of your complexion, and the success of your appearance, and while not sacrificing beauty be assured of the efficacy of your foot-wear for keeping out cold and chill.

WOMAN'S PAGE.ROUND THE SHOPS.

[By "EVE"]

Lane, Crawford. Fashion, often incorrectly described as a capricious tyrant, is, in reality, the kindest of queens. So thoughtful is she for the comfort and wellbeing of her faithful followers that she is always careful to provide them with suitable dresses for every possible occasion. Bridge became a popular pastime: at once bridge frocks and coats made their appearance. Cocktail parties have become the favourite form of entertaining; at once we have the smartest and most decorative clothes made especially for wear at cocktail parties. To-morrow is the first day of the Annual Race Meeting and Lane Crawford's have assembled together a most charming collection of "Josephine" gowns for the occasion. One model in a fuchsia and georgette is pin-tucked at the waist and in the flared skirt. Satin is being used very much for afternoon gowns this season: a very chic model is in a deep red and gains distinction from the inset pieces of the material which is cleverly cut to give the slimming effect. Another model, also in red, gives you the idea how charming pin-spots can be on satin; it is cut in one piece with three large box-pleats at the front of the skirt, while a beige jabot trims the front and glass buttons are used on the sleeve. Printed satin is used for another model in a beige and navy blue design; it is in the princess style and is beautifully cut.

Whiteaway's have received a large assortment of lovely accessories, which include everything to complete the ensemble—gloves, scarves, sunshades, and stockings, which have all become increasingly important this year for millady's costume. The scarves are really lovely and are bound to give a touch of elegance and colour to the morning or afternoon toilette. This can also be said of the dainty lace and crepe-de-chine collars and cuffs which appear in a large variety of beautiful designs and colours. Gloves are becoming more and more important and a full selection of the latest styles is being shown. There is also a very attractive line of silk and golf stockings and socks which have to be seen to be appreciated.

In the furnishing department I was shown some of the famous "Marble" sheets which are of exceptionally good quality. Satin quilts, printed linens and beautifully designed cretonnes, cushions and pouffes are being bought, now in readiness for bright spring days.

Pamela. It is not only possible, but perfectly simple to be stylish and combine economy with chic, especially during the present sale at Pamela's where the models in afternoon and evening gowns are very greatly reduced in price, in some cases to as much as half the original prices. These dresses are all French and English models and women who have to dress well on a small allowance will do well to start laying the foundations of a spring wardrobe right away. This shop is always well stocked with the latest in accessories and hats, shoes, bags and all those little luxury items which complete the harmony of the ensemble are also greatly reduced.

Maison Marnac. The woman who looks well in her clothes is the woman who chooses them because they suit her and not only because they are fashionable, and if she is in any doubt she consults an expert. Youthful owners of slender figures are "easy" to dress. The larger than stock-size woman is not quite so simple a proposition. But here again it is simply a matter of knowing whom to consult; and many readers already know that the expert at Maison Marnac has a flair amounting to genius for making smart frocks for women who, if not junoesque, have at any rate figures more substantial than those which run to slim lines. A charming selection of lovely Paris gowns are seen this week. Among them, it is interesting to note, black still plays a prominent part. One delightful model in black georgette had tiny frills in the form of a bolero, while tiny frills trim the skirt. On the afternoon dresses sleeves are quite complicated, some being seen with quite long wrist frills, many falling almost to the edge of the skirt.

The Dolly Vardon Hat Shop. Women who want to get a comprehensive idea of the early spring fashions must visit the Dolly Vardon Hat Shop this week to see the new collection of hats just arrived for race week. While most of us are still thinking in terms of winter frocks, for the dress artist the spring season has already begun. A new hat is as good as a tonic. Any woman will admit that there is nothing like a new hat for stimulating faded spirits. The hat is still the most fashionable form of headgear and is made up into quite dainty hats these days. A very charming model is in black and white ribbon straw and a perky little bow is used for trimming. Early spring hats destined to be worn for the first time

The Book Shop and Bible Depot. Are you among the lucky ones who are going Home? If so, you should not miss visiting this book shop a visit this week, as they have just received a large variety of books, embroidery cards, and patch work pictures of fairy tales to amuse the kiddies on the voyage. The embroidery cards are very instructive and are just the thing for the very small ones; these are sold at 30 cents a packet. Books have been very much reduced, and "Tuck me in Tales," "Madam Tussaud's Painting Books" and others which would delight the kiddies are marked at prices ranging from 30 cents to 70 cents each. "Madam Tussaud's" is an exceptionally good book and is filled with a lot of beautiful coloured pictures.

STRAW AND FABRIC.

Many of the season's millinery models vary the monotony of their plain straw surfaces by having insertions of fabric let into the crown or the brim. For the hot summer days, tagel straw combined with linen has been very popular. Green linen has been a favourite choice for trimming natural tagel hats, while beige straws have inserts of beige linen.

For the spring, heavy fabrics are chosen. Satin is combined with bako, and some picture hats for the first months of summer have eye-letted embroidery on muslin let into the straw. Felt combined with straw is also seen, and another favourite for spring is velvet, as a trimming for bako. Black velvet on white and natural bako straw is stressed as an important note in the new millinery.

On white-brimmed hats, the fabric is let into the brim and the crown, in bands, forming a smart contrast. The small tongues have inserts in the crown only, or else the two fabrics are swathed together to form a close-fitting, cap-like hat.

The alliance of such winter fabrics as felt and velvet with the summer straw is particularly suited to the spring, the between season, when fashions are a little undecided. A hat in which the two fabrics are combined would serve equally well for hot summer days and for the cooler days when a coat or woollens is needed.

NOTES ON LINGERIE.

The feminine note is firmly emphasised in lingerie these days. Even pyjamas, which used to be considered the essence of masculinity, are now as frivolous and fussy as the most elaborate negligees and nightgowns.

I saw some pink satin pyjamas the other day which were finished with collar and cuffs of crêpe lace, and the collar was cut in one with a frilly jabot. Another pair of pyjamas had their tucked-in blouse top set into a deep lace yoke, the edge of the lace outlined with fine embroidery.

The vogue of the dinner pyjama persists, and a mild sensation was caused at a dance the other night when a guest appeared in pyjamas and unconcernedly took the floor in this rather unconventional attire. True, you hardly realised they were pyjamas until she danced; for the trousers were cut very widely indeed and perhaps by this time next year we will think nothing of wearing pyjamas for informal dances.

Certainly, women wear dinner pyjamas nowadays, just as much as they wear negligees, although so far they have only adopted this fashion in the privacy of their own homes. Some of the newest pyjama suits to be seen at a well-known London salon are made with velvet trousers, crêpe de chine blouses, and knee-length coats, carried out in metal tissue. Other suits are expressed in washable satin, and there are suits made of corded velvet, cut with collarless coats, which adopt the new dipping line at the back.

We still think a nightgown is incomplete unless it is accompanied by its own matching bed jacket, but the newest bed jackets are made with outworn cuffs, so that you are in no danger of becoming embarrassed with your breeches and eggs when you breakfast in bed. The latest knickerbockers are no longer set into elastic above the knee, they now go into a fitting band, and are just slightly pleated above it, to introduce the necessary fullness. And at the waist, the elastic must only be at the back, the best knickerbockers set into a fitting yoke in front. All the new lingerie, indeed, shows this cleverness in introducing fullness without bulk. Petticoats have quite dispensed with gathers and pleats, but they still have fullness, for they are made with long insets of material set in between the side seams. Other petticoats follow the Princess line, which is adopted by so many of our dresses, and fit the figure closely to below the hips, and from there they flare into well-hanging fullness.

Satin, triple voile, and crêpe de chine are the three favourite materials of the moment for lingerie, and pink remains the most fashionable general colour, although a new idea is to have sets of lingerie to go with every dress, made in the same colour. This rule extends even to black, and the black sets are among the most successful of the new lingerie designs. Sets of flowered lingerie are also pretty and popular, and these are generally adorned with self-coloured bindings, white with colour like, and blue underwear feels its best when trimmed with cream lace. As for pink, it now likes to be combined with putty-coloured lace—no fashions change and impose themselves upon us with the justified assumption of complete success.

BEADS FOR EVENING.

BRILLIANT EFFECTS.

Beaded evening gowns have never actually passed out of the fashion picture, although their popularity waned of late years, because the beaded and sequinned gown became too commonplace. A single model in which beaded or sequinned motifs formed the trimming, often appeared, however, among others of plain chiffon, lace, or satin. Rhinestones and trimmings of studded diamante have also held their own lightness and brilliance of effect. Not only will chiffon be beaded or sequinned, but lace is also to serve as the background for these glittering trimmings. On lace frocks, the whole of the material will occasionally be beaded lightly, but more often the long high-waisted corset will be the background for beading, while the skirt will be plain.

A charming example of this fashion was noticed in which the long and close-fitting bodice, reaching to the hips, is of lace, covered with sparkling sequins, and little loops of glittering beads. From the knee, the frock breaks out into a billiant, fluffy skirt formed of many layers of tulle. At the hem, a narrow band of the sequins and beads appears again, adding to the brilliance of the frock, and co-ordinating the bodice and skirt. The tulle and lace are of the same tone of ivory.

Beaded will also be used also for evening accessories, such as bags and gloves. Long kid gloves will be trimmed with beaded motifs on the back of the hand and on the arm. Bags of moiré, satin, velvet, and crêpe de chine, with beaded flowers and conventional designs, will rival the pedicots of diamonds and rhinestones, which are now so popular.

THE NEW FANS.

Fans have been made of feathers, silk, tinsel, mother-of-pearl, and they have been in all shapes, from round to a polygon of uncertain proportions. But it has taken what is no less than a craze for velvet to bring in the velvet fan of the moment. As a rule the velvet fan is in very bright colours. With the vogue for white satin in dresses, red velvet has been adopted here as well. It is in keeping with the red velvet capes and cloaks which are so widely used for evenings, and, like them, it sometimes has little touches of white fur. The velvet fan is often square and sometimes round. Sometimes the square is pulled out to one side to give it a lozenge effect. The sticks are usually of wood, but may be any material. The edges of the velvet are treated with a sort of blanket-stitching, which binds in the ends of the velvet, but not so successfully as to make it improbable that another method may not be devised. The fans make a very bright spot of colour, and sometimes they are made to match the jewellery.

With the vogue everywhere for turquoise colour, both in dresses and in jewellery, fans are also made in turquoise velvet, and they look very well against the many dashing white satin frocks that are worn. Sometimes there is a turquoise knot on the shoulder which matches the fan. Old fans are not difficult to cover with the velvet. The material must be cut exactly the size of the old covering, and the first folding has to be very carefully done. Velvet may be worked over with almost invisible metal threads, which break up the surface and give it interest. Some of the worked fans, indeed, are really works of art, and they lose some of the heaviness which attaches when the merely plain velvet is used.

throughout many seasons. Now we are to see a revival of the beaded frock, but it will not be the beaded frock known of old. The new beaded evening gown will be one entirely modern in its

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER.

THE INQUISITIVE FEATHER.

There was once a little feather who lived in a pillow with lots of other little feathers. One day he said to himself: "I'm tired of living in this pillow, packed up so tightly with all these other feathers. I shall just get out and see what it is that comes 'bang' on top of us every evening and squeezes us up together closer than ever."

So with his little sharp nose this little feather began to push hard against the inside of the pillow-case, and by-and-by he had made a little hole, and he wriggled half of himself through it.

Suddenly something caught hold of him. It was two little fingers; and then he heard a happy little laugh, and a voice said: "Oh, look what I have found—a pretty little feather!" And then the feather heard another voice say: "How lovely! Let's play 'Blow the Feather.' You blow it to me and I'll blow it back to you."

"I wonder what they mean!" said the little feather to himself. But before he could guess what was happening he found himself sailing backwards and forwards through the air, this way, that way, first up, then down, until the poor little fellow felt quite dizzy. "I do wish they would stop doing this to me!" he groaned. And just then they stopped. The children to whom the voice belonged were so out of breath with laughing, puffing and blowing that they could not puff and blow any more.

Just then the little feather heard a clock strike; two pairs of little feet scrambled out of the room and the little feather was left lying on the carpet just where he had floated when he was last blown. At first the feather was pleased to be able to rest; but presently he began to feel lonely, for the room was so quiet. Then suddenly a terrible thing happened. A little kitten came into the room, and when it saw the feather, the pussycat thought he would like to play with it. So he tapped it with his paw, and knocked the feather into the air. Then he leaped at it again and knocked it down to the carpet. "Oh, dear, the pussycat has got sharp claws," thought the feather, and he began to get all ruffled up. "Whatever will become of me? There will not be any of me left soon if this pussycat does not stop."

THE MUSICAL ELVES.

Once I woke up in the night,
And said to Fido: "Hark!
Someone is playing music here,
And singing in the dark."

I quickly lit my candle then
And jumped right out of bed;
"Come Fido, let us go and see Just who it is," I said.

And oh! What do you think we found!
Three tiny little elves,
All dancing to my gramophone
And singing to themselves.

"Don't run away!" I cried to them.
"Please do not be afraid!"
For I had startled them, you see,
But, to my joy, they stayed.

And oh, they did dance merrily
In my small gramophone;
"We'll come again another time!"
Joan.

They cried, "Good night, dear

HOAXER TO BE MARRIED.

MR. COLE'S SERIOUS STEP.

William Horace De Vere Cole, champion hoaxer of the world, who has made hundreds of people laugh with his practical jokes, is to be married at a London register office.

Some of Mr. Cole's most famous jokes are:
Posed as the Sultan of Zanzibar, and given an official reception at Cambridge by college and civic authorities.
Raped off a large area of Piccadilly dressed as a navvy.
"Inspected" the British battleship Dreadnought as the "Prince of Abyssinia".
Chased Mr. Oliver Locker-Lampson, M.P., down Whitehall crying "Stop thief." (Both arrested. Mr. Cole bound over.)
Mr. Cole's bride will be Miss Maylin Winifred Mary Wright, aged 23, a Londoner.

"The wedding is going to be a very quiet affair, for it is no joking matter," Mr. Cole told a newspaper representative with a twinkle in his eye.

He is taking great precautions against practical jokes on the occasion. "I have played 95 practical jokes in all parts of Europe," he said, "and I have never been caught out. I do not intend to let anyone catch me this time."

"I shall not make him retire from his position of champion joker after we are married," said Miss Wright. "In future we shall joke in double harness. He must do at least five more jokes to reach his century, and I don't intend to stop him."

"No, I'll not tell you the date of my wedding," added Mr. Cole. "There are too many friends of mine waiting to get their own back."

Mr. Cole recalled he ran down Whitehall after Commander Oliver Locker-Lampson shouting "Stop thief!" and finally had him taken to the police station accused of stealing a watch and chain.
"But Commander Locker-Lampson had his own back," remarked Mr. Cole, "because shortly afterwards he published a long obituary notice about me."

He described how he arranged with a dozen women to wait outside a church and fling their arms round the neck of a certain bridegroom with the words, "Don't leave me, Eddy," and how at the last minute his relatives implored him to cancel these arrangements.

"My brother Jim was one of the few people to play a practical joke on me," added Mr. Cole. "He staged a mock burglary and tried to capture some specially prized paintings by Augustus John."

Miss Wright is a tall, graceful girl with golden hair and brown eyes. She has known Mr. Cole for three years. The wedding reception is to be held at the house of Mr. Maximilian Lohkowitz and they will go to Spain for a walking tour honeymoon.

TRUTH CODE IN DIVORCE COURTS.

SAME FOR THE POOR AS FOR OTHERS.

"There cannot be in the courts a less exacting code for humble class people regarding telling the truth than there is for other people."

These were the words of Mr. Justice Baineson in the Divorce Court, when, on the intervention of the King's Proctor, he rescinded a decree nisi granted at Birmingham Assizes to Mrs. May Sibill Whitehouse, of Newhampton Road, Wolverhampton, and dismissed her petition.

Mrs. Whitehouse had obtained a decree against her husband, Mr. Walter Whitehouse, a fitter, living at Wolverhampton.

Mrs. Whitehouse, in her petition, admitted misconduct on two occasions in 1916; but when the case was heard at Birmingham she admitted misconduct once only, and swore that her husband condoned it.

It had been proved that she had committed misconduct with three men at least, possibly with a fourth, and that there had never been condonation by her husband. It was unfortunate that this respectable husband should remain tied to his wife. He had found some one else with whom he had been living happily since 1922 or 1923. There was no reason why the husband should not be free of his tie on taking proper proceedings.

THREATS TO BRITISH PROFESSOR.

TO BE "REMOVED" BY BOLSHEVISTS.

Professor B. J. Willden-Hart, of Ouslow Gardens, W., who has been actively engaged in the formation of an anti-Soviet Atrocities League, states that he has been threatened that if he does not cease his anti-Bolshevik activities steps will be taken to "remove" him.

The threat came in a typewritten letter, bearing the Derby postmark. The writer signed himself "Tektra Berolsky," and the letter read:—

"Sir—We as part of the great movement of the Russian revolution warn you that if one more notice should appear in any paper, British or foreign, we shall take steps for your removal, which will mean your death."

"We cannot now stand any of this silly business of trying to stop us from coming to your country. We have stood it for time enough, and now we shall stop it all. We have no desire to cause the death of any British people, but if anyone shall go on after we have warned them we shall feel it our duty to remove them."

"We shall be back in London on February 8 and it is then that we shall take steps if you have not stopped.—Yours truly,

"TEKTRA BEROLSKY."

Thrice Fred At.

Professor Willden-Hart told a Press representative:—"I have had a taste of the this sort of thing before, for I was shot at on three occasions eighteen months ago at Dulwich. In view of this fact I am taking the letter at once to Scotland Yard."

"I have been to Russia many times, both before and after the war. Once in Russia I was jumped on from behind by two men, but I got away and on to a train which was just starting. I got out at the next station, and, avoiding frontier posts, got out of the country."

"Eighteen months ago I was living at Ryegate, a large house, at Dulwich. One night while I was at dinner a shot came through a window above my head. Another night a shot was fired through a window at the other end of the dinner-table. Nothing more happened for ten days, but the very night the police came to watch the house they had another pot at me as I was returning home with my wife from the theatre."

Professor Willden-Hart was attached to the British Embassy in Constantinople in 1908-9, and from 1915 until 1919 was engaged in military intelligence work in Russia, Germany, Japan, Poland, and elsewhere.

CROCODILE'S VICTIM.

YOUNG MAN DIVES TO DEATH IN POOL.

Membakut Estate was the scene of a tragic incident last "hari bear" when a Dusun youth was taken by a crocodile in the Membakut river in somewhat unusual circumstances, says the Sarawak Gazette.

In the early part of the day the manager, Mr. J. K. Hayward, had gone out to dynamite fish in the river. Having blanketed out the pool and secured what fish were 'put up,' his party passed on upstream to the next pool.

Some Dusuns of a village through which he passed, hearing that 'membakut ikan' was afoot, at once, as is their custom, tacked themselves on uninvited. Coming to the pool which had just been worked, they stopped to reconnoitre its depths in the hopes of picking up a few 'stragglers.'

The youth, it appears, dived in first. The others were just about to follow suit when there was a terrific commotion in the pool, and the next thing they saw was their comrade in the jaws of a huge crocodile and crying out for help.

In desperation, the man's wife, a young and good looking woman, it is said, straightway jumped into the river, immediately followed by four other men; and by their shrieks and splashing, they so frightened the crocodile that it let go its victim and sank out of sight.

The man, still alive, but with the whole of his chest badly lacerated by the brute's teeth and bleeding profusely, was hauled out on a stretcher. Mr. Hayward, who had taken him to the estate hospital, but the man became unconscious and died on the way.

LADIES' RECREATION CLUB.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO BE RAISED.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED.

The annual general meeting of the Ladies' Recreation Club was held at the Helen May Institute yesterday when Mrs. Etherington occupied the chair. Other members present were:—Mrs. Tottenham, Mrs. Gilmore, Mrs. Raiton, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Fischer, Mrs. Sommerfeld, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Comrie, Mrs. Henderson, and Mrs. Adams.

Addressing the meeting, Mrs. Etherington said that as the report and accounts had been with the members for the prescribed period, she would take it that they have gone through them. No doubt they must have noticed a deficit of $198.57 for the year and she explained that this was due to fewer members and to the many repairs that had to be put through during the year.

The following were then elected to serve on the committee for the ensuing year:—Mrs. Etherington, Mrs. Sommerfeld, Mrs. Tottenham, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Fischer, Mrs. Hill, and Mrs. Raiton, while Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. Johnson and Miss Looker were elected to serve on the balloting committee. Dr. Montgomery was elected to serve on the ground committee, with power to co-opt two other members if he so desires.

The question of raising the subscription came in for a lot of discussion after which it was decided that as from January 1, 1931, the subscription of individual members and husbands and wives be raised 25 per cent, while that of the temporary members be raised from $8 to $10.

There was also a lot of discussion regarding the cost of teas, as well as visitors' fees. Some members held that the former was too cheap as compared with the charges in some of the other clubs and it was decided to raise this from 20 cents to 30 cents. The meeting also decided that visitors' fees be raised to 50 cents while the charges for their tea be the same as those for members.

SON CUT OFF IN WILL.

HUNT FOR HEIR GOES BACK TO 1418.

The strange story of a disinherited son and the search for a descendant of a knight who died 600 years ago, is revealed by an announcement in the London Gazette.

Sir Thomas Brooke, Knight, of Holditch Court, died about 1418, and was buried in Thorpe Church. It is his heir male who is asked to come forward to claim an estate left by Francis Copper Brooke, of Ufford, Suffolk, who died on January 13, 1896.

The eldest son of Mr. Francis Brooke, Colonel Reginald Brooke, is still alive and is 78. He was disinherited by his father, and the estate cannot pass to him.

Interviewed recently, Colonel Brooke declined to discuss the matter, but the surviving executor of Mr. Francis Brooke's will, Mr. J. H. Luchman White, of Bradfield House, Woodbridge, Suffolk, said there was "a good deal of vindictiveness" about the will.

"Very Quick-tempered."

"Mr. Francis Brooke was a very quick-tempered man," said Mr. White. "He was almost a book worm, and I think he felt out with his son because of dissimilarity of taste."

"Mr. Brooke thought his second son would marry and have a son, but he did not marry. Mr. Brooke directed that in the event of the second son not having a male heir, and if his daughter, Mrs. Constance Lethbridge, died without issue, the property would go to the male heir of Sir Thomas Brooke."

"Who the heir is we have no idea, and it is more than probable he will never be found. In that event the property will pass to Major Blois, second brother of Sir Ralph Blois, one of whose ancestors many years ago married into the Brooke family. Major Blois is now in occupation of Ufford Place, and the probability is he will eventually succeed to the estate."

The reason the announcement appears in the London Gazette is that it is a legal notice should be inserted in that journal three times a year.

A black and white illustration of a crowded, chaotic scene, possibly a market or a festival, with many people and structures. The style is reminiscent of a woodcut or a detailed line drawing. The scene is filled with numerous figures, some standing, some sitting, and some in motion. There are various structures, including what looks like a large, ornate building or tent in the background, and smaller, more makeshift structures in the foreground. The overall impression is one of a busy, bustling environment.

PRETTY CHINESE WEDDING.

WELL-KNOWN FAMILIES UNITED.

A THOUSAND GUESTS AT RECEPTION.

Over a thousand guests were present at the reception held after the wedding yesterday of Mr. Kenneth Chan and Miss Jasmine Wong. The whole of Lane Crawford's Restaurant was taken by the wedding party from 2.30 to 7 p.m., and an amazingly decorative assembly it was. Interest, of course, centred round the bride couple who stood under a wedding bell of white flowers to receive their friends, and a very charming wedding group it was with the lovely little bride in her bridal array, surrounded by a bevy of hardly less pretty bridesmaids in pink satin. The great cake which towered high above the heads of bride and groom weighed over 200 lbs.

Mr. Kenneth Chan is the manager of the Kowloon branch of the Bank of East Asia, and is a son of the late Mr. Chan Kai Ming, and is a well-known and popular figure in Hong Kong. The bride is the daughter of Mr. Wong Kam Fuk, Comptroller of the Hong Kong & Kowloon Wharf & Godown Company. Like her sister she has been educated in England.

The wedding was solemnised in St. John's Cathedral, the Rev. N. L. Watkins officiating. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Wong Sik Lum, wore a lovely dress of figured white tulle, with veil, and carried a bouquet of white roses. She was attended by four bridesmaids, the Misses Gertrude Chan, Beatrice Chon, Rose Lee, and Stella Ho, who were charmingly dressed in pink satin, three little flower girls, Pamela and Cissy Ho and Margaret Morales, and Master Eric Ho as page boy.

Mr. John F. Shea was "best man" and Mr. H. L. Fore was groomsmen. Among those present at the reception were Sir Robert Ho Tung, who proposed the health of the newly-married couple, and Lady Ho Tung.

THE RECEPTION.

Sir Robert Ho Tung, in proposing the health of the happy couple at the reception, said:—

"When, a few days ago, I was requested to propose the health of the bride and groom on this happy occasion, I felt that my genuine dislike of making speeches must give way to the call of duty. I am closely related to the family of the bride; I was an old friend and business associate of the father of the bridegroom. I could not therefore but regard the compliance of that request as a matter of duty.

"It is, of course, a pleasant duty. To an old man of 70 like myself, it is always pleasant to be surrounded by bright and young faces. And to-day it is a great pleasure to me indeed to participate, amidst not only youth and beauty, but so many relatives and old friends, in the wedding ceremony of a couple with whom I am so intimately connected.

"The only tinge of regret which I feel—and I feel it keenly, and I know you all share this regret—is on account of the unavoidable absence of the bride's father, Mr. Wong Kam Fuk.

Tribute to Bride's Father.

"I know I am voicing the feelings of all present to-day when I express our sincere wishes for his early and complete recovery, and a speedy return to Hong Kong. Indeed, I feel I can claim to express these wishes, not only on behalf of those present, but on behalf of a large body of the general public, for Mr. Wong Kam Fuk, as Comptroller of the Hong Kong & Kowloon Wharf & Godown Co., Ltd., and for more than 20 years as a member of the District Watchmen Committee (from which he only recently resigned on account of his health), is a public figure for whom the community entertains a warm and affectionate regard.

"The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. Chan Kai Ming, whom, if only because of his services to the Chinese as one of their representatives on the Legislative Council, and of his munificence in the cause of education and charity, the Colony cannot, and will not, forget. "Educated at the Diocesan Boys' School, the bridegroom is now manager of the Kowloon branch of the Bank of East Asia, Ltd., and is therefore already on the threshold of a brilliant commercial career. (Applause.)

A Talented Bride.

"The bride was educated in what I may call the sister school to that of the bridegroom, namely, the Diocesan Girls' School. She

ADMIRAL KELLY ARRIVES.

NEW COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF CHINA STATION.

JOINED NAVY IN 1886.

Vice-Admiral Sir W. A. H. Kelly, K.C.B., C.M.G., M.V.O., the new Commander-in-Chief of the China Station in succession to Admiral Sir A. K. Waistell, K.C.B., arrived in the Colony yesterday by the s.s. Rawalpindi. His flag will be hoisted in H.M.S. Suffolk tomorrow.

He is the third son of Col H. H. Kelly, R.M.A., and has latterly been Vice-Admiral Commanding the First Battle Squadron and Second-in-Command of the Mediterranean Fleet. Entering the Navy in 1886, he became Lieutenant in 1894, Commander in 1904, Captain in 1911, Rear-Admiral in 1922, and Vice-Admiral in 1927. From 1902 to 1904, he served in Somaliland (medal and clasp), and was Naval Attaché in Paris from 1911 to 1914, being an interpreter in French.

Record of Service.

Vice-Admiral Kelly was distinguished early in the Great War as captain of the light cruiser Gloucester in her chase of the German battle-cruiser Goeben, and in 1917-18 he was Commodore of the Allied Naval Forces in the Adriatic. From 1919 to 1921, he was head of the British Naval Mission to Greece, with the rank of Vice-Admiral in the Greek Navy. In 1923-24 he was Rear-Admiral in the First Battle Squadron, Atlantic Fleet, and he commanded the 2nd Cruiser Squadron from 1925 to 1927.

In 1927, he was appointed Admiralty representative on the League of Nations Permanent Advisory Commission, and took a prominent part in the negotiations concerning the Anglo-French Agreement of July, 1928.

Vice-Admiral Kelly was married in 1907 to a daughter of the late Admiral Sir Edmund Poe, G.C.V.O., K.C.B. He is the holder of many foreign decorations, including Officer of the Legion of Honour (1917), French Croix de Guerre (1917), Officer of the Italian Military Order of Savoy (1918), American Distinguished Service Medal (1919), and Greek Order of Military Merit, 1st Class (1919).

Admiral Waistell.

Admiral Sir A. K. Waistell, the retiring Commander-in-Chief, has been in command of the China Station since 1929. He was invested with the K.C.B. decoration at Government House and was raised to the rank of full Admiral in May, 1930.

He leaves for England by the P. and O. Malwa tomorrow.

then proceeded to England to study art and to specialize in music, in which she became most proficient. Her aestheticism and musical accomplishments will give to her husband's life of business activities, just that touch of colour and romance, just that background of change and variety, which will be such a potent stimulus to effort, and provide such an effective antidote to the monotony of one's daily labours. (Applause.)

"Ladies and Gentlemen, a couple so ideally matched as is the bride and bridegroom, cannot but make a complete success of their married life—(applause)—and I wish them, as I predict for them, every happiness and prosperity. (Applause.) "As I believe some of the Chinese ladies present may not know English I venture to conclude with a few sentences in Chinese, the translation of which is:—We congratulate the bride and bridegroom and wish them a long life of mutual love and mutual respect, and a large family of many worthy sons and daughters. (Applause.) "And now Ladies and Gentlemen, I ask you to raise your glasses and drink with me to the health and happiness of the bride and bridegroom. (Applause.)

Bridegroom's Thanks.

The bridegroom, replying, said:—"Sir Robert Ho Tung, Ladies and Gentlemen,—My wife and I very much appreciate the honour of your presence. We thank Sir Robert for his kind words and good wishes, and we thank our friends also for the many gifts that we have received.

The honeymoon is to be spent in Spain and the Philippines. The bride left wearing a dress of cherry coloured crepe and tulle, over which she wore a fur-trimmed coat.

POPSY AT THE DANCE.

[TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONG KONG DAILY PRESS."]

My Dear,—I didn't see you at the Dance! No invitation! How gallant, my dear, but anyhow there's St. Patrick's and the Volunteers' though they are different aren't they.

Simply all the best people were there and all trying so bravely to show they weren't haunted by the Spectre of Poverty. But the frocks, my dear, too utterly economical and practically no backs, only what the Observatory man calls "a V-shaped depression between the Bopins." Nothing lavish, my dear, but Angus said he'd never seen so much waist. And there wasn't a collection though Tubby said there was sure to be as the Government has simply no money left, but everything was quite free and heaps of people simply hibernated in the supper-room and ate like Indian Famine Victims—too glutinous, my dear, but the poor things hadn't been able to afford a meal for weeks.

And the Bar, my dear!—Did Arty miss His Bottle? I trow not. Why, they clung like molluscs and got so damp they became positively fungoid.

And, Oh, those uniforms! Just too scintillating, my dear; and the glittering satrap who took me to supper says its real gold and no wonder there's none in circulation. Angus said we could have stabilised the dollar at $1. with the braids off their trousers and why weren't the Commissioners there to take them off but they couldn't have done that with us there, could they. How terribly thrilling to wear 18 carrot pants, my dear.

Tubby says there were quantities of civil servants there simply reeking of confidential dollars and flaunting their misbegotten gains—too leprous, my dear, sort of Cal's Head at the Feast you know, and I say they really ought to be incalculable because they do tarnish the air.—Your terpsichorean,

POPSY.

A.D.C. PRICES AND THE BOTTLES.

[TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONG KONG DAILY PRESS."]

Sir,—With reference to the Amateur Dramatic Club's forthcoming production of "Art and Mrs. Bottle," I notice from the posters that prices for seats are to be $3.50, $2.50 and $1.50 as against $5, $2 and $1 charged hitherto. The new prices include Amusement Tax and the advertised increase in respect of the Stalls and Dress Circle, is understandable, but, unless there is some very good reason for it, it doesn't seem to me quite fair on the pit patrons to jump the price 50 per cent. while the presumably more affluent play-goer is only affected to the extent of about 16 per cent.

Some friends of mine who enjoyed the play at home, have strongly advised me to see it, but I am a man of small means and don't feel like paying $1.50 when I think $1.10 more consistent.

As theatre prices are a matter of public interest I hope you will insert this letter.—Yours, etc.,

PITITE.

"ART AND MRS. BOTTLE."

[TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONG KONG DAILY PRESS."]

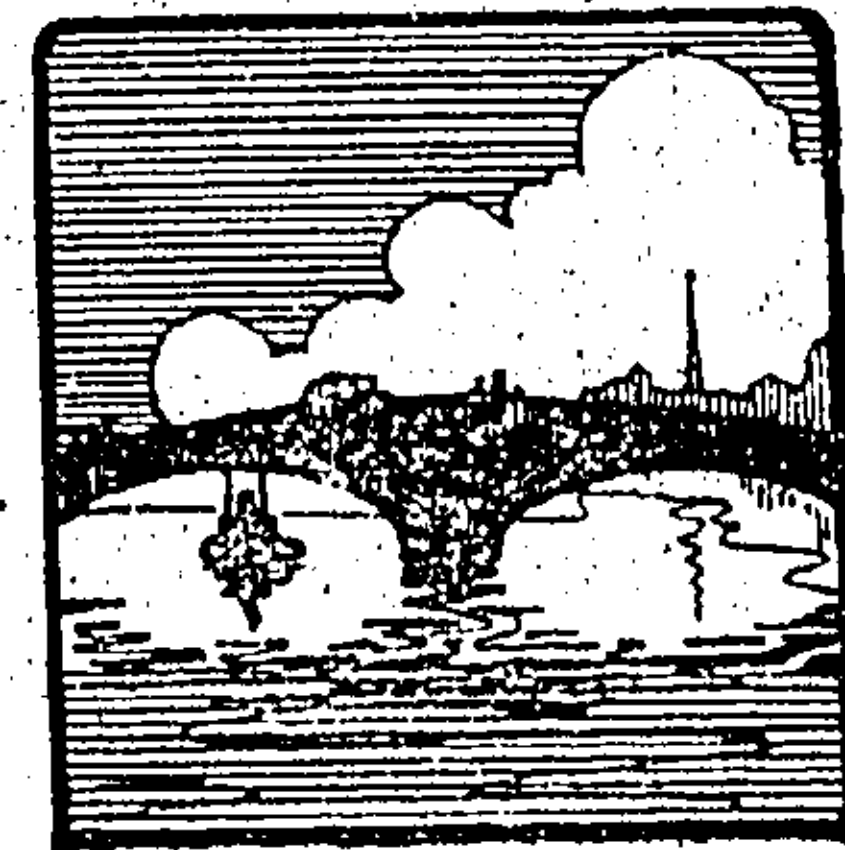

Sir,—I do not feel called upon to defend the views I expressed in my recent review of "Art and Mrs. Bottle," and I cannot think that anything I stated with regard to its extreme modernism is to be construed into an adverse opinion as to its propriety.

On the contrary, the impression I wished to convey, was that its suggested improbability was greatly exaggerated. In criticising a play of this kind it is necessary to keep in mind not only the eternal standard of excellence but the standard of the day.

"Art and Mrs. Bottle" is emphatically not Art, but all it loses as a representation of Art it gains as a representation of life—or of that peculiar phase of life preached and practised by the Bottles of our age.

The Victorian Age knew as little of real art as it knew of real life and your contributor, who, in certain passages in the play, is reminiscent of the Victorian critic who described Stephen Phillips as "Dumas speaking with the voice of Milton."

Hong Kong, February 26.

INCREASES ON LIQUOR AND TOBACCO DUTIES EXPLAINED.

BUDGET DEFICIT MAY RESULT IN FURTHER TAXATION: RISE IN POSTAL RATES FORESHADOWED.

GOVERNMENT LOAN FOR WATERWORKS SCHEME POSSIBLE.

The big deficit in the estimates for 1931 was the reason advanced by the Colonial Secretary, Hon. Mr. E. R. Hallifax, at a meeting of the Legislative Council yesterday, when formal official sanction to the recent increase in tobacco and liquor duties was sought.

There was a full attendance of Council members with only one exception, the Hon. Dr. Kokwall, C.M.G. being absent.

In moving the resolution relating to the duties on liquors, the Colonial Secretary mentioned among other things that an increase in postal rates was under consideration. He also added that if the Colony were to carry on with its waterworks scheme and other works almost as pressing, the money will have to be procured by means of a loan.

MR. BRAGA AND THE SMALL CONSUMER.

The Colonial Secretary's speech was as follows:—

Recent statements by you, Sir, in this Chamber have foreshadowed the necessity for additional taxation, if exchange failed to improve, and the action taken a week ago in connection with duties on alcohol and tobacco can hardly have come as a surprise. The action then taken by Your Excellency by and with the advice of the Executive Council now needs confirmation, but before I put the resolution formally, some explanation is necessary.

The Estimates for 1931 as approved by the Legislative Council showed a deficit of $2,200,000, the dollar throughout being calculated at 1/4d. The sterling commitments of the Government for 1931 amount to £277,000, and the dollar at an average of 1/4 throughout the year will mean that a further $3,333,000 must be added to the deficit—making a total deficit of $5,533,000. The method of paying Government salaries one half at 1/6d. and one half at the current rate is calculated to reduce this figure to $4,300,000; and an effort is being made to economize still further by the exclusion or postponement of approved items of expenditure, the result it is hoped, in a saving of a further $1,000,000. The deficit would thus be reduced to $3,300,000.

To Make Up Deficit.

Had the dollar remained at 1/4d. the estimated deficit of $2,200,000 would have been reduced to $750,000 by the half and half method of paying salaries to which I have already referred, and which was introduced after the approval of the Estimates. The added deficit at the average rate of $1=1/4d. over the deficit at $1=1/6d. is therefore $1,450,000; and it is this sum that the Government considers it necessary to provide, with a view to restoring the position that was contemplated when the 1931 Estimates were framed and approved.

To meet this requirement, an increase in the opium prices has been already approved and published; and it is estimated that $200,000 a full year and $164,000 in 1931 will be derived from this source. The resolution before you represents an increase in the rate on beer and kindred liquors from 40 cents to 60 cents a gallon, and a revision for the rates on tobacco to those obtaining before the last increase which was effected in 1930. Liquors excepting beer, but including Chinese liquor imported into the Colony, keep their rates as set out in silver currency unchanged, but the ten cents per gallon rebate allowed on the export of locally distilled liquor is withdrawn.

In the cases of all alcohol and tobacco, however, the duties are to be payable on the basis of $1=1/8d. and it is estimated that beer and liquors should provide an additional $350,000 during 1931, and tobacco $225,000, making due allowance for decreased consumption in both cases.

Postal Rates.

These figures however will still not meet the bill, and an increase in postal rates is under consideration, estimated to yield $160,000 in the course of 1931. The totals then become:—

Postage	$ 100,000
Opium	100,000
Beer and Alcohol	350,000
Tobacco	225,000

From which has to be deducted Military Contribution of 20 per cent. $ 322,000

£1,010,000

a sufficiently close approximation to the desired total to stand for the time.

A Warning.

It is right to warn the Council that if the Colony is to continue with its waterworks scheme, admittedly an urgent necessity, and other works almost as pressing, the money will have to be procured by means of a loan; and supply will be needed for the interest and sinking fund. The community has been, I believe, in a spirit of resignation expecting some increase in the assessed taxes, but it is proposed to keep this as a first reserve against the service of the loan when it is floated. The intention is not to raise the loan in one total sum, but to begin on an issue of Treasury Bills until it can be more clearly seen what the ultimate needs of the Colony will be.

I beg to move the resolution.

The Hon. Col. Treasurer seconded.

Mr. Braga on Profiteers.

Hon. Mr. J. P. Braga, addressing the Council, said it was not his desire to speak in opposition to the resolution moved by the Colonial Secretary. The statement that honourable members had just heard made it perfectly evident that some form of taxation had to be enforced to meet the severe problem of the drop in exchange. He had, however, one matter which he had to mention in the interest of small consumers of wine and tobacco. In their case they have had to put up with dealers and retailers who had already put up their prices in anticipation of the new scale of taxes. Storekeepers both in Hong Kong and Kowloon had increased their prices and included the new duty which did not come into operation until passed by the Legislative Council.

H.E. the Governor: The increase in duties on liquor, Mr. Braga, has already taken effect.

Mr. Braga said that somehow or other dealers had already anticipated the new duties and had put on extra cost. He suggested that a distinctive form of label might be adopted by the Import and Export Office for the new charges on wines and tobacco as distinct from wines and tobacco which had already been taken out of bond. He hoped the suggestion would meet with the approval of His Excellency.

Impractical Suggestion.

H.E. the Governor observed that he had already seen the suggestion, in the Press but thought it was quite an impracticable one. He added that the very fact that new labels were being made by the Import and Export Office would therefore defeat the very object for which the labels were made. In connection with the wine dealers, His Excellency expressed the opinion that they must protect themselves. They would probably find themselves in the similar position of the consumer if the wine duty was dropped at some future date.

The motion was put to the meeting and passed.

The Colonial Secretary then moved a resolution in connection with the increase in tobacco duties. This was also passed.

The third reading of the Estates Duty bill was also passed. There were several amendments to the bill since its second reading.

The Finance Committee, which met after the Legislative Council meeting, approved of votes totalling $37,504 in connection with estimates detailed in our issue yesterday.

ROUND THE COURTS.

That Spitting Habit.

"If I catch you spitting in my Court again, I'll fine you $5," said Mr. E. W. Hamilton, at the Kowloon Magistracy to a Chinese delinquent yesterday. The defendant was reprimanded.

Stowaway's Luck.

Wuyada Katsuda, a Japanese, who stowed away from Kobe on the Kowloon Maru when brought before Mr. Hamilton yesterday, was ordered to be kept in Police custody for two days, pending his return to Japan. It is understood that the local agents of the ship had offered to repatriate the defendant to Japan.

Wanted in America.

The Chinese woman, who is wanted in America for alleged embezzlement of $225,000, was remanded for a further 48 hours yesterday on the application of Mr. T. Murphy, A.S.P., who explained that he had not as yet completed his inquiries regarding the woman.

Indian Remanded.

Pashwar Singh, a private watchman employed by the Green Island Cement Company, who was brought up at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday on a charge of assaulting an Indian constable and obstructing the officer in the execution of his duty, was remanded. The constable, it was explained, was still in hospital. It is alleged that the defendant struck the constable several times causing a wound on the forehead and the loosening of two teeth.

False Addresses.

Brought before Mr. Williams at Central Magistracy for giving a false address when pawing, a watch, a Chinese explained that he was a dealer in old watches, buying them second hand and selling them again after repairing them. The police have found two other nava tickets on the man which bore false addresses. A remand of twenty-four hours was asked for and granted.

Fine of $14,000.

An elderly man and a younger woman were charged before Mr. W. Schofield at Central Magistracy yesterday with possession of 122 tins of opium without the necessary permit. The man pleaded guilty and was fined $14,000, or in default, one year's hard labour. The woman, who pleaded not guilty, was discharged, the Magistrate accepting her plea.

Expulsion Order.

Detective Sergeant Whant made an application to Mr. Williams at Central Magistracy yesterday for the committing of Alfredo Lopez, a Spaniard, to the House of Detention with a view to his subsequent expulsion from the Colony. The man, it was explained, arrived in the Colony without proper passports and had already served a month's imprisonment.

A Candid Defendant.

When a Chinese youth was charged before Mr. Hamilton yesterday with not having complete control over his cycle in Kai Tak Road and with offering a bribe of $2 to a constable, he pleaded guilty to both charges. He was fined $5 and $10 respectively with the alternative of three weeks' imprisonment.

A "Lucky" Hour.

A shopkeeper at Wing Shing Street, who was charged with firing crackers without a permit at one o'clock yesterday morning without a permit, said that he chose that particular hour to open his business for the new year because it was a lucky hour. When he still holds that opinion is problematical as the Magistrate mulcted him in a fine of $5.

"Not All There."

Mr. M. K. Lo made a successful application for re-hearing a case before Mr. Williams at Central Magistracy yesterday in which a Chinese was sentenced for picking a man's pocket. Mr. Lo explained that he had been instructed to say that the man was the accountant of a well-known firm in Wellington Street owned by his father. At the time of the incident, the elder man was absent from the Colony, being called away on account of the illness of his wife. The defendant was practically in charge of the business and it was unlikely that he would stoop to picking a man's pocket.

Continuing, Mr. Lo said the accused was frightened when arrested, and looking through the evidences for some external evidence of his mental attitude, he found that he was not "all there." He (Mr. Lo) had discovered that the address of the accused was set out as unknown. "If he were collected, if he were all there, he might have said he was accountant at the shop, a statement which might have some effect in your Worship's mind. Having regard to the improbability of a young man in his position committing such a crime, I ask your Worship to rehear the case." Mr. Lo also

His Worship granted bail in the sum of $150, and provisionally fixed the case for next Thursday.

WHAT IS A LOTTERY TICKET?

S.C.A.A. EXECUTIVE FINED.

INTERESTING CASE BEFORE MAGISTRATE.

Before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday, Ho Lung Kwong, described as the chief executive of the South China Athletic Association, was charged with (a) having printed, published or caused to be printed or published, lottery tickets in respect of the sweepstakes for the Hong Kong Derby at the Spring Meeting, 1931, and (b) with keeping a common gaming house.

Mr. H. Somerset Fitzroy was for the prosecution while Mr. M. K. Lo appeared for the defence. Mr. Lo told the Court that the South China Athletic Association were the real defendants. The chairman was present in Court and he, together with the other executives, are not trying to avoid responsibility, which was, really speaking, a collective responsibility. In August last, the Association approached the authorities regarding the terms under which they could run the sweep and correspondence had been passed between them and the police. The present action was brought as a result of a misunderstanding on the part of the Association, and the Hon. Inspector General of Police fully appreciated this when it was explained to him.

Tickets for Sale.

The first witness called for the prosecution was Ying Lai Chow who said he was an interpreter in the detective office. On February 13, he went to the premises of the South China Athletic Association and there obtained a ticket from a man named Lam whom he saw there. When asked for a ticket, Lam produced a book which contained three or four and asked witness to choose one. This was done and witness then handed $10 over to Lam. The number of the ticket was 12534.

In reply to a question from Mr. Lo, witness said that although he did not know Lam personally, he knew that he (Lam) was a member of the Association. He did not know his full name either.

After a translator from the S.C.A. had given evidence to the effect that he had translated the wording on the ticket and some other documents, Inspector Reynolds went into the box. He said that he visited the S.C.A.A. on Saturday, the 21st inst.; in company with D.C.I. (Mr. Perdue) and that he entered the premises under the warrant which he produced in Court. The object of the visit was explained to certain officials and as a consequence of the visit, he brought away a filing cabinet which was in the office of the Association. In the drawers of the cabinet, continued Inspector Reynolds, were a number of counterfoils, similar to the one produced in Court, while in the safe which defendant unlocked, were a number of bundles, each one containing a piece of paper which bore ten numbers. There were also some books and a small ledger.

What Is a Lottery Ticket?

Continuing, Mr. Fitzroy said that what they wanted to know was, what is a lottery ticket? If then read the Ordinance after which he said there was no doubt that the ticket was, in fact, a lottery ticket; as regards the definition of the word ticket, Mr. Fitzroy said that in Webster's dictionary it was defined as follows:—"A ticket is a card with words or characters on it showing that the owner is entitled to something," while in an English dictionary it was defined as "a slip bearing evidence of the holder's title to some service or privilege to which it commits him."

Mr. Fitzroy concluded by saying that whether one took Webster's definition or the other one, there was no doubt at all that the one in question was a ticket and that he submitted, without any doubt, that it was a lottery ticket.

Mr. Lo then addressed the Court, saying that the Association was formed as far back as 1917 when it had a membership of 105 but since then the number has increased to something like 4,400. In was in every way a respectable institution, and its honorary presidents included the three Chinese representatives on the Legislative Council. They had always tried to obey the laws and regulations of the Colony and have, Mr. Lo said, he ought to publicly state how grateful they were to the authorities for the many courtesies which had been extended during all this time. They were deeply thankful for this kind co-operation.

No Intention to Break Law.

As regards the present case, Mr. Lo said that in August last, the committee met to discuss the matter and they had no intention whatever to do otherwise than obey the law. As was stated before, there was an unhappy misunderstanding. (Continued at foot of next column.)

MILITARY SCHOOL AT WHAMPOA.

PLAN FOR THREE SPECIAL ACADEMIES.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

CANTON, Feb. 26.

Marshal Chiang Kai Shek, in a telegram to the local Government, is again contemplating the re-establishment of a military school at Whampoa.

The message states that the Central Government at Nanking is planning the establishment of three special military academies in China for the purpose of training the rising generation in the technique of modern warfare. The work which these three special military academies are intended to accomplish will be along the line of military engineering, infantry and artillery. Each of the three academies will specialize along one of the lines named.

Whampoa, according to the Nanking Marshal, is the most suitable site for the establishment of a military engineering academy. The place has long been noted for the part it played in the Nationalist Movement, which culminated in the unification of China under Nanking. It was there that Chiang Kai Shek organized and trained his best troops, known as the Whampoa cadets, who figured so much in the national revolution. The site was first selected by the late Dr. Sun Yat Sen, and was developed with the help of the Russians into a military training quarters largely through the efforts of the then unknown Chiang Kai Shek, but with the consummation of the national revolution the famous Whampoa Military Academy was dissolved to save expense. The buildings and other property were entrusted to the safeguarding of a committee under the chairmanship of Mr. Wu Cheng.

Mr. Wu visited Nanking last week in response to the request of Marshal Chiang, who wished to conclude the necessary arrangements for the opening of this military engineering academy as early as possible.

The sites for the other two special military training academies have not yet been selected.

NEW RECORDS AT ANDERSON'S MUSIC CO.

THE CHARM OF ENGLISH FOLK SONGS.

Among the new Columbia records recently received by the Anderson Music Co. is a consignment of the popular Leyton and Johnstone series, D.B. 303, "If I Had a Girl Like You," is to the lay mind the most attractive; being quieter and more melodious than the others. But to the true expert in modern American music these qualities may be a defect and not a virtue. Suffice to say that all shades of those performers' art is represented.

A really delightful record is D.B. 303, with our old friend "Clementine," sung by an appropriately colloquial voice, with a "rough miners" chorus. On the other side is the "Zumerzet" song about the courting of "Dinah." English folk song is also represented by the favourite, "The Bulls Won't Bellow," with "Old Barty," on the other side. English folk songs have come into their own in these days, recently Dame Clara Butt, and her husband, and then the Westminster Glee Singers showed us in Hong Kong that English ballads and direct songs are unrivalled, and you never get tired of them.

"I'd like to find the Guy that wrote the Stein song," figures both as an organ solo (D.B. 315) and on a vocal record, and very well done it is in both cases. The organ record—played in the Regent Theatre, Brighton—also has "We must all pull together," and there is real fire and swing in the playing.

Another English record that should be popular is D.B. 303, a selection of carols sung unaccompanied after the manner of the Christmas waits—though more truthfully than the genuine article aspires to in these days.

but this was explained to the Hon. Inspector General of Police who fully accepted the explanation.

As to whether the document was a ticket or not, Mr. Lo dwelt at length on this matter, and held that the document, which he said was in the form of a Chinese letter, did not purport to be a ticket within the meaning of the section.

"If you," Mr. Lo holds that it is a ticket," concluded Mr. Lo, "then I must pleaded guilty to both charges, but I ask you to regard it, as the police regard it, as a technical offence and register a nominal fine."

Considerable discussion followed after which Mr. Schofield said: "The more I think of it, the more it appears to me to be a ticket within the meaning of the definition." He held that defendant was liable, accordingly, to the summons. Mr. Fitzroy then applied for permission to withdraw the second summons.

This was allowed and a fine of $10 was imposed on the first charge.

ANOTHER DEATH SENTENCE!

In these days when the best written stories are often good sellers, it is not quite "best sellers," in the sense that the word is applied to the work of certain lady novelists, it seems unduly pessimistic to write of the impending doom of the novel. Yet this has been done by that very cultured author, Mr. J. D. BENESSFORD. He is firmly convinced that his own form of art is dying. The English novel may seem hale and hearty, but that, he considers, is illusory, like the appearance of many a sturdy sufferer from one or other of the diseases invented in Harley Street.

Mr. BENESSFORD and certain of his brother-novelists agreed a few years ago that "the novel in its popular form cannot survive another generation," and though he has cheered up slightly he looks for a strong reaction against what he calls the conventional type of fiction. It is a pity to break with the traditions of a hundred and ninety years, but here is a qualified observer who warns us of imminent change.

Particularly, it seems, the neatly conducted story with a plot that is to go. The plots are exhausted— but were they not exhausted a generation or two ago? Mr. BENESSFORD acknowledges the excessive increase in detective novels, but to him this is one proof of the novel's failure; detective stories are not, properly, novels, but forms of mental exercise like crossword puzzles. These, doubtless, will give way to pure mathematics, and the inventor of the puzzles may yet be canonised as the leader of humanity to a higher mental plane. Anyhow, there is to be a great slump in detective stories during the next ten years, because original plots are becoming impossible.

It is the cinema that is to take the place of all but a few and relatively high-class novels. As Mr. BENESSFORD points out, the cinema can give you all that matters in detective story or even romantic story in an hour and a half. It can also make the figures talk, or give a fair imitation of talking. A novel costs 7s. 6d. or a lot of bother with a library, but you can get it at the cinema in an hour-and-a-half for a contemptible sum!

Mr. BENESSFORD does not make himself quite clear, but he seems to say that even our best novelists have now to "experiment in a new medium." Some of them may be able to express themselves in the cinema, but those who do not must depart "more and more from the classical and romantic forms that can be exhibited with greater effectiveness upon the screen," and develop "a sterner though by no means unnecessarily a more depressing realism. And if I were called upon to advise an earnest young novelist as to his choice of treatment and subject, I should tell him to study contemporary life closely at first-hand, and to write of it as he saw it."

But this is what the earnest young novelist has been doing, and doing so assiduously that there is now a reaction against it. This question of the survival of the novel is, however, closely linked with the matter of its cost. An eminent bookseller says that cheap new books may be left out of account, that experiments in this direction have always failed; the managing director of a famous publishing firm, too, thinks that reductions in the price of new novels would be uneconomic and harmful to all concerned. But Mr. ARNOLD BENNETT, who knows a thing or two, says that attempts to cheapen new books must eventually succeed, and that authors will make more money out of them. Mr. BENNETT seems to be on the right track, for very few of us buy new novels, except, perhaps, the work of a favourite author who is not prolific, say, Miss MAY SINCLAIR, or Mr. BENESSFORD himself. But the demand for fiction of every kind is enormous. A novel is still the best form of escape from every day life, and from ourselves. President WILSON, as cultured a man as ever lived, once confessed that his chief pleasure was, when each long day's work had ended, to forget the cares of State in the excitement of a well-constructed detective "thriller."

RAILWAY STATIONS.

The London, Midland and Scottish Railway is considering the abandonment of Euston and the construction of a new station further north. "I earnestly trust," says a writer in a London paper, "that when they leave that false Acropolis, they will construct something bright and convenient." Many of us must have speculated, in idle moments, on the form that railway stations might have taken had trains, been, used in the Middle Ages, when Gothic architecture flourished. But trains and Gothic architecture do not and could not flourish side by side; the minds absorbed in dreams of pointed arches, vaulting and flying buttresses, do not create the conditions that require trains. Trains came in when the Ugly Age was at its height.

If decoration of railway stations were ever attempted, it was in the Albert Memorial style, and to-day one is grateful for the strict utilitarianism of Paddington, which is simple and immense. The designers of Euston attempted to apply something of the canons of the ancient art of architecture to the modern world, and though their effort was but a beginning, their lesson was not wholly lost. Most of London's stations are very ugly. What could be worse than King's Cross and Cannon Street, except, perhaps the drab insignificance of Charing Cross? The latter suggests one of Mr. ARNOLD BENNETT's commercial travellers, complete with bowler and bag, rather than Queen Elizabeth and the graceful cross within its taxi-rank? Victoria, on the other hand, shows an improvement. There is quite a fair façade, with sturdy nymphs and vineleaves in cement casting, while within, over the big circulating space, hangs the great clock beneath which many of us have kept appointments. Waterloo has an even bigger circulating space and is a model of impressive simplicity. New York, we believe, has triple-storied stations in the best ferro-concrete manner, and ferro-concrete, as our local architects have shown, gives opportunity for severe and striking effects. Perhaps the Colony may in the distant future possess the world's model station. It would not be the largest, for with our requirements that would be ostentation, but the Calais-Kowloon express of another age will need an adequate finale to its tremendous journey.

Members of the drug-trade are invited by the Organisers, to visit the 33th. Chemists' Exhibition which will be housed from May 11-15, 1931, in the new Hall of The Royal Horticultural Society, Westminster, S.W., practically under the shadow of the Houses of Parliament and Westminster Abbey. Admission can be obtained on presentation of trade card.

"Well, it's deep enough for me, dad. I'm not a cannibal."

How Horses Really Move.

One of the criticisms of Mr. Hardiman's Haig statue is that the horse is walking as horses do not walk. But art frequently departs from fact in matters of this kind. For centuries galloping horses were invariably painted with their legs stretched straight out fore and aft. Then came instantaneous photography and failed ever to catch them in this attitude.

Another Tobacco Millionaire.

The late Sir Joseph Hood, was a very rich man and his estate will amount to more than £1,000,000. Although well known and well liked in Wimbledon, Sir Joseph was not much in the public eye. The size of his fortune will come therefore as a surprise. It was made entirely from his investments in the British-American Tobacco Company, of which he was vice-chairman, and his name can now be added to the long list of tobacco millionaires. Originally, Sir Joseph was a solicitor in Liverpool, where he acted for Ordens. In that capacity he met J. B. Duke, when that tobacco king was forming the British-American Tobacco combine, and was, therefore, negotiating the purchase of the Ogden interests. Duke made up his mind about Hood's ability at once, brought him to London, and put him into the British-American Tobacco Company—and into a fortune. Duke was a tremendous figure in the American financial world. His fortune was not made entirely from tobacco. He had also large interests in hydro-electric power development schemes. To meet, he was, somewhat eccentric. Crossing the Atlantic it was an extraordinary sight to see him walking the deck day after day dressed in a morning coat and, what the Americans call, a Derby hat. In fair weather or in foul, when the sea was calm or when a storm was brewing, that bowler never left his head.

A Judge of Men.

Sir Joseph Hood was not the only man whose outstanding ability Duke spotted at first sight. He made a still more important selection in much the same manner. Many years ago he went down to Liverpool to purchase the Imperial Tobacco Company's foreign interests for the British-American Tobacco Company. During the negotiations a young man, the manager of the Imperial Tobacco export department, was brought into the room. His services were of a purely subordinate nature, and he was called in to answer questions of character and ability, and carried him off to London to serve the interests of his own concern. That young man was Sir Hugo Cunliffe Owen, to-day the chairman of the British-American Tobacco Company and the leading industrialist, of Great Britain.

British Singers for America.

Though America provides the world with most of its light music England continues to send serious British musicians to America. Mr. Eugene Goossens, who recently took charge of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, is arranging an operatic festival at Cincinnati this year and is securing many British singers. Among them are Miss Eva Turner, whose fame is world-wide, and the Yorkshire tenor, Mr. Walter Widdop, who also has a European reputation and last year was singing leading roles at the Opera House, Barcelona.

Hospital Rates for New Poor, etc.

A new hospital scheme for middle-class patients arranging for an agreed weekly payment, or "flat-rate," to cover charges for operations, residence, and entire treatment, has been drawn up by the West London Hospital. This will be the first experiment of the kind in England. Sir William H. Wells, chairman of the hospital, said that in the new scheme ability to pay in accordance with income and other circumstances will be taken into consideration, and the minimum charge will be seven guineas a week. So maximum income has been agreed upon, though it is possible that a man with £1,000 a year, and a wife and five children, may be eligible.

The Butler's Crime.

Mr. Justice McCawley at the banquet of the Knights of the Round Table told two good stories about judges of a previous generation. One concerned Lord Chancellor Westbury. The horses bolted and the coachman, turning round to him in an agony of apprehension, cried, "My lord, we shall have an accident." "Very well," replied Lord Westbury, "by Heaven I drive into something cheap." He then gave an admirable instance of pompous splitting metaphors. Lord Kenyon, in sentencing a butler for robbing his master, pronounced as follows: "You have violated the profound rights of domestic confidence. You have done worse. In the course of the last three years you have been feathering your nest with bottles of your master's wine."

A £1,000 Blue Book.

One of the largest and most expensive Blue Books of recent times and one of the most amazing productions is the report of the Committee of Capital Punishment, with a verbatim transcript of all the evidence. The report runs to 114 pages; the evidence set in double column, and small print, appendices, diagrams and memoranda occupy 851. This alone sells at £1 2s. 6d. a copy. The preparation for publication of the northward minutes of evidence cost £197 15s. 2d. The cost of printing and publishing the report is estimated by the Stationery Office to cost £780. Witnesses' expenses amounted to £293 8s. 7d. And the net legislative result of all this costly investigation is to be nil. Ah, economy!

contemplates retaining her army in Manchuria on the ground that China is being encouraged by Japan to prepare for war with Russia. Russia is bound by the Portsmouth Treaty to withdraw its troops from Manchuria within 15 months of the ratification of the treaty. The condition of the troops and of Russia herself is such that she is anxious to find any pretext to delay their withdrawal. To break the treaty with Japan is an act of war, not only war with Japan, but war with Japan's ally, Great Britain, and it is difficult to believe that Russia can consider it safe to put forward the pretence that Japan is encouraging China to go to war with Russia.—(Hong Kong Daily Press) February 23, 1930.

The prisoners all declared that they were arrested by mistake, and asserted that they had been beaten and not the constable. The first and sixth prisoners were discharged, the third was fined $2 in default, six days imprisonment with hard labour, the second and fourth, fourteen days imprisonment with hard labour.—(Hong Kong Daily Press, February 26, 1931.)

H.K. CURRENCY MISSION.TERMS OF REFERENCE LIMITED TO COLONY.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Feb. 25. In the House of Commons at question-time, Dr. Drummond Shiels said that it had been arranged for a Mission to proceed to Hong Kong forthwith to enquire into the currency system of the Colony and report.

The Mission will consist of Mr. W. H. Clegg, Governor of the South African Reserve Bank; Mr. P. H. Ezechiel, one of the Crown Agents for the Colonies; and Mr. G. L. M. Clouston, of the Colonial Office (Secretary).

Mr. Ezechiel and Mr. Clouston will leave for Hong Kong on February 25.

Mr. Clegg will meet them at Singapore.

The Mission will report to Lord Passfield, Secretary for the Colonies, and no action will be taken on their recommendations until the Government of Hong Kong has been further consulted.

If it appeared desirable to also consult other interests, this would be done.

Mission Wholly Concerned With Colony's Currency.

Asked as a supplementary question whether the Mission would be empowered to consult the Chinese Government and consider the question of the Chinese currency, seeing that this is a question of the depreciation of silver currency, Dr. Shiels said he had no doubt that the Mission would take into account all relevant considerations, but they were wholly concerned with the currency of Hong Kong.

Aid for China.

Mr. G. H. Shakespeare (Liberal) asked whether Mr. Henderson, in consultation with the Powers concerned, had in view the supporting by economic or other financial means of the National Government of China in connection with the restoration of its internal and external trade.

Dr. Hugh Dalton replied in the negative, and added that His Majesty's Government had been encouraged by the evidence of an increased state of tranquillity and increased control by the National Government over large areas of the country.

His Majesty's Government hoped to encourage this by the provisions of the recently passed China Indemnity Bill.

L.O.N. Official's Visit to China.

Replying to a supplementary question regarding the visit of Sir Alfred Sillar to China, Dr. Dalton said that the visit was on behalf of the League of Nations, and not any particular country.

Mr. Cazenlet asked whether the visit was bound up with the stabilisation of silver.

Dr. Dalton did not reply.

LADY OWEN'S SEVERE SENTENCE.APPEAL TO COURT OF CASSATION.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

PARIS, Feb. 26. The sentence passed on Lady Owen is regarded in many quarters as being too severe, and her Counsel is preparing an appeal to the Court of Cassation. He also said he is contemplating an appeal to President Doumergue to reduce the sentence by one or two years. Anyhow it is not expected she will serve the full term, as the year already spent in prison must be taken into account.

Meanwhile, it is learned that an action by Lady Owen against a film producer to return Francis, 50,000 advanced to him for a film in which she was to be starred as a languishing vamp is pending before the Paris Courts.

According to Le Journal, parts of the film were "shot," but were not strikingly successful, and the venture was dropped.

BIG BURGLARY AT SHANGHAI.$30,000 WORTH OF LOOT.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.

The biggest burglary of a foreign shop for the last few years took place here in the early hours of yesterday morning, when burglars entered the premises of Messrs. Boyes, Bassett & Co., the well-known jewellers in Nanking Road, and carried off $30,000 worth of loot, consisting of watches of Swiss and American make, and a number of earrings.

Entrance to the shop was gained from the skylight, from which the burglars lowered a rope and climbed down.

A watchman noticed a shadow moving inside and blew his whistle. Police hastened to the scene, but the thieves escaped.

SHANGHAI AMATEUR JOCKEY'S FLIGHT.GERMANY TO SHANGHAI VIA S. AFRICA AND INDIA.

Much interest has been aroused by the report that Mr. Victor Hu, a local Chinese amateur jockey, is making arrangements for a flight from Germany to Shanghai via Africa and India.

He obtained his pilot's licence in Germany, from which he is departing in the course of the next few weeks.

He states that his object is to stimulate the interest of his countrymen in aviation. He is using a German light aeroplane.

COMMUNIST 'BANDITS' IN KIANGSI.ANTI-RED CAMPAIGN EFFECTIVE.

(Chun Wan Yat Pao.)

NANKING, Feb. 26.

Chu Tak and Mo Chak Tung, the Communist leaders, are establishing their headquarters at Ningbo, in Southern Kiangsi. LOSS OF HIGHLAND HOPE.CAPTAIN'S CERTIFICATE SUSPENDED.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Feb. 26.

The Court of Inquiry into the Highland Hope found that the stranding and loss were due to the failure of the master to navigate the ship in a proper seamanlike manner, and suspended his licence for six months. The Court considered that the second officer was remiss in his duties, and the owners cannot be absolved from all blame, because a master of such age cannot be expected to stand the physical strain of commanding such a large passenger vessel.

Chief Officer Reprimanded for Destroying Scrap Log.

LATER.

The Court severely reprimanded the Chief Officer for concealing the fact that he brought the deck scrap log ashore and subsequently destroyed the log.

The Court commended the fourth officer, Mr. Parry, for his courage and resource in dealing with the situation due to an accident to a lifeboat.

RED UNEMPLOYMENT DISTURBANCES.EXCESSIVE EXUBERANCE IN BERLIN.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

BERLIN, Feb. 25.

The police mobilised in full strength to-day to suppress an excessive exuberance in connection with the "world-wide" Communist unemployment demonstration.

Scuffles occurred at various points this morning, notably in Gormannstrasse, where the demonstrators used beer glasses and fired revolvers.

The police are in control of the situation everywhere.

"Red Wednesday" Demonstrations.

LONDON, Feb. 25.

A Communist call to the unemployed throughout the world to demonstrate on "Red Wednesday" produced a crop of incidents in various European cities.

There was a very serious incident at Leipzig, where a crowd attacked the police.

The latter retaliated, and three demonstrators were killed and eight wounded.

Unemployed in Berlin wrecked the Labour Exchange and looted provision shops.

Over 100 arrests were made in Paris, and police, mounted and on foot, were overrun in Barcelona.

At Prague, Warsaw, and Luxembourg mobs were charged by the police.

Fifty windows were broken in Copenhagen and 50 arrests made. The movement was ignored in Britain.

SCOTTISH AMALGAMATED SILKS, LTD.ONLY THREE OF ACCUSED DIRECTORS GRANTED BAIL.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Feb. 25.

Bail of £2,000 each has been allowed to three of the accused—Gardner, Hannay, and Stachle—but refused to nine others in the Scottish Amalgamated Silks case.

Thirteen well-known North of England and West of Scotland business men were formally remanded in custody in the Glasgow Sheriff's Court on February 17 on charges of fraud and false pretences arising out of an investigation of the affairs of Scottish Amalgamated Silks, Limited. The amount involved is stated to be £438,000. The following are the names of the 13 arrested business men:—Fred Tomlinson, John Morrison Rockland, George Stanley Coats, Seton Veitch Coats, Joseph Johnstone, James Sutherland, Robert Hannay, Alexander Young, George Todd, Duncan Wilkie, Alexander Henric, John Gardner, and Alfred Callender. Striding, the managing director of the company, one of the 13 business men charged, was released on bail of £10,000, owing to ill-health.

THREE-YEAR PLAN IN AUSTRALIA.REPUDIATION POLICY DENOUNCED BY PREMIERS.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

MELBOURNE, Feb. 26.

The Premier's Conference re-affirmed the resolutions with regard to the Three-Year Plan to deal with the financial problem, including wage reductions and a tax of three shillings and sixpence in the pound on all public loans which are subject to Federal taxation.

The Conference passed a resolution denouncing Mr. Lang's repudiation policy, while voting was equal on a resolution involving inflation by the Governments of the Commonwealth, Victoria and South Australia favouring it, while Queensland and West Australia and Tasmania opposed it.

The resolution declared that the Commonwealth Government should furnish £1,000,000 a month to provide employment on reproductive works and £3,000,000 to provide a bounty for wheat to relieve the distress of the wheat growers.

The Federal Government will introduce legislation to create and issue a fiduciary currency limited to £18,000,000 to be devoted to the purpose.

Advances from the fiduciary fund will be covered by public loans.

Australia's Indebtedness.

The Premier's Conference statement denouncing Mr. Lang's policy says his assertion that Australia is paying Great Britain £30,000,000 annually in war debts is absolutely inaccurate. Over two-thirds of this sum are necessary to meet the debts of the States, none of which has a war debt. The Commonwealth's war debts payment to Great Britain are £5,500,000 annually in accordance with the Anglo-Australian agreement.

Australia owes Great Britain and the United States £573,000,000, of which the war debt to Great Britain is now £81,000,000.

Mr. Scullin, when in England, started negotiations with the view to a modification of the 1921 Funding Agreement.

New Fiduciary Currency.

LATER.

Mr. E. G. Theodore stated that the Federal Government proposed to introduce a Bill in Parliament to create a fiduciary currency to meet the emergency and to provide funds to create employment.

Proposed New Province if N.S.W. Defaults.

SYDNEY, Feb. 25.

As a sequel to Premier Lang's repudiation policy, Dr. Earl Page, supported by the Country Party in the districts concerned, is campaigning for the secession of the Riverina District of North-East New South Wales and the establishment of an independent province to be called "New England," bounded on the North by the Queensland border, on the West by the Darling River, and on the South by the Hunter River.

It is suggested that a Provisional Government for the new province should be established ready to act immediately if New South Wales defaults.

It is also suggested that any special currency New South Wales may issue be resisted.

OBITUARY.LADY FRANCES BALFOUR.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Feb. 25.

The death is announced of Lady Frances Balfour, M.D., D.Lit., who was a great champion of women's rights, but a great critic of modern fashions.

Lady Balfour was the widow of Colonel Eustace Balfour and was the fifth daughter of the 8th Duke of Argyll and Lady Elizabeth Leveson-Gower. She was President of the Travellers' Aid Society and the author of several biographical works.

AMERICAN TARIFF TEST CASE.IMPORTANT RULING BY CUSTOMS COURT.

[REUTER'S AMERICAN SERVICE.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.

A decision of the greatest consequence to importers is involved in the ruling of the United States Customs Court that under the "Flexible Clause" of the Tariff Act the President is empowered only to alter the rates, not the wording or the meaning, of any clause in the tariff.

The decision was given in a test case brought by the Fox River Hutter Company against changes affecting Swiss cheese imports, made by President Coolidge.

WORLD PACT OF PEACE.BRITAIN'S ACCESSION TO GENERAL ACT.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Feb. 25.

In a Memorandum on the proposed accession of the Government of the United Kingdom to the "General Act" of 1928, approved by the League of Nations for the pacific settlement of international disputes, Mr. Arthur Henderson points out that the time is past when His Majesty's Government in Britain "could make any new departure of this kind in foreign affairs without full consultation with the Governments of other parts of the Empire."

He adds that following the opinion expressed at the Imperial Conference in 1930, the Government of the United Kingdom will invite the House of Commons, at an early date to approve accession, in the knowledge that the Governments of the Dominions and of India agree to their action and believe that such action will make a further contribution to the peace and security of the world.

Britain Bound to Consult Dominions.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUSSY, Feb. 25.

A Memorandum was issued to-night regarding the proposed accession of the Government of the United Kingdom to the General Act.

It will be recalled that the ratification of the optional clause was regarded as an "essential part of the effort seriously to implement the undertaking of the pact of peace in creating effective safeguards against war before its realities are forgotten."

The optional clause, however, related only to justiciable disputes, and it was to cover the field of non-justiciable disputes, so that all international disputes of whatever character should be capable of pacific solution, that in 1929 the League Assembly produced the so-called "General Act." Its importance lies in the fact that it completes the organised system of "all-in arbitration."

Its initial currency is five years from the first accession in 1930.

A White Paper points out that as the Pact of Paris provided no machinery for a pacific solution of disputes, signatures of the optional clause and the accession to the General Act are a logical sequence to acceptance of the Pact. His Majesty's Government, however, could only accede to the General Act on conditions corresponding closely to those made regarding the optional clause.

These reservations are, firstly, disputes arising prior to accession to the General Act or relating to situations or facts prior to accession; secondly, disputes regarding which the parties to the dispute have agreed or shall agree to have recourse to some other method of peaceful settlement; thirdly, disputes between His Majesty's Government in the United Kingdom and the Government of any other member of the League which is a

He assured the House that the United States and Japanese Governments were being kept informed of all that occurred.

EUROPEAN STATES' SURPLUS WHEAT.CONFERENCE FAILS TO REACH TANGIBLE RESULTS.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

PARIS, Feb. 26.

A resolution in favour of a system for the control of marketing of surplus wheat was approved at a plenary session to-day of the European Agricultural Conference.

The conference ended without tangible results, deciding that it was not competent to settle details of marketing. The members of the conference, however, undertook to import certain quantities of the surplus wheat of central and eastern European countries.

member of the British Commonwealth, all of which disputes shall be settled in such a manner as the parties have agreed shall agree; fourthly, disputes concerning questions which, by International Law, are solely within the domestic jurisdiction of States; and fifthly, disputes with any party to the General Act who is not a member of the League.

The White Paper recalls that last year's Imperial Conference provided an occasion for consultation on the subject with other Governments of the British Commonwealth. Imperial opinion was emphatically in favour of the principle of the Act, and the Government of the United Kingdom will invite the House of Commons, at an early date to approve of the accession in the knowledge that the Governments of the Dominions and the Government of India are in agreement with their action and in the belief that such action will make a further contribution to the peace and security of the world.

CRICKET TEAMS AND PLAYERS.

NO LEAGUE SURPRISES ON SATURDAY.

R. ABBIT'S WEEKLY REVIEW.

No less than two League matches were decided last Saturday and both ended very much as was expected. The K.C.C. opening pair were all over the C.C.C. attack on what appeared to be a pretty easy wicket. What might have happened had Bruce been given caught at the wicket off one he admits he touched one cannot say, but the umpire ruled in his favour. He then went on to complete his hundred, while Teddy Fincher collected sixty odd just before. They had been pretty slow at the beginning, I am told, as the match started fairly punctually and they took until four twenty three and a half (I quote an expert) to make a hundred and sixty-eight. Admittedly this works out over a run a minute, but, on the K.C.C. ground which was playing quite fast in the outfield, it is not very fast for a partnership of a hundred and fifty for the first wicket.

A Matter of Opinion.

Of course, officially, the declaration, which I grant you could not reasonably have been made earlier, left the Craigengower batsmen just on an hour and three quarters, but with the existing light conditions it was pretty obvious that the ball would have to be dipped in luminous paint round about six p.m. if they were going to carry on. As a matter of fact the question of going out for the runs was more or less settled when in the first over Gittins hit out at one that he did not quite get to and was taken at mid-off. Thereafter it was just a question of time and in my opinion the C.C.C. would have been quite justified in playing for a draw. Actually what happened was that things steadied down a bit. Lim was playing very pretty defensive cricket, while being quite severe on the loose ball. A. T. Lee was unlucky to be taken in the gully close in off that kicked up abominably, but, with E. Zimmerman in a good stand was made. It seemed at this time quite on the cards that Craigengower might save the game, and Hung, and later Freddy Zimmerman, came on to bowl. The former was pretty well on direction, but finally he managed to pull out a really good one to bowl E. Zimmerman. It was the beginning of the end. Lim began to jump out and talk to Freddy Zimmerman but he missed one and Mackay brought off a pretty piece of stumpings. Thereafter it was a procession though admittedly in slow time.

Club-Navy Match.

The Navy, as I suggested last week, were short of a good many of their best players. The only bright part of the Naval innings was a perfectly Scraphop stand between Jovitt and Lane for the fifth wicket. They hit cheerfully and Jovitt was playing very nice cricket—sudden thought, however—it is definitely tedious to run the owner out—until he got in two minds over one of Beck's and pushed it up to silly mid-off—where Beck just reached it. Jovitt and Lane between them totalled a hundred and twenty-four. Bowker and Beck had, respectively, four for twenty-four and four for fifteen, but it seemed to me that Beck was bowling nearly as well but without any luck. The Club had little difficulty in knocking off the runs.

Next Season's Interport.

In the natural course of things Shanghai are due to send a team down here next November, though, of course, no official invitation has yet been sent. I have fallen into the way—as no doubt some of my readers of shuffling up the situation after each week end. The thing that struck me most this week is that I hardly see Sig. Williams, A. C. L. Bowker, A. C. Beck and Ferreira all in the Hong Kong side. I expect to see H. P. Lim in several of the trial games. He has a nice style and plenty of defence, while he can hit like the force if he lets go. I fancy his position in the batting order cramps him a bit at present. In the trial games, where he has not to consider the loss of his team, he may develop a lot, though, of course, it remains to be seen if he has the (big game) temperament or no. Duckitt, of the H.K.C.C., should be a strong candidate. A spell of going in a little lower down in the order has developed his powers of opening, up at things, and he watches the ball right on to the bat. But it is singularly unfortunate that there seems to be no young blood coming along. One wonders when some of the good Public School cricketers—or blues, will get a job in the Colony.

To-morrow's Games.

Indians and Civil Service both have blank days. The Club will journey to Pokfulam to play the "Varsity". The fact that it is the first day of the races will weaken them considerably, I think, but Owen Hughes will probably be able to raise a side strong enough to secure victory. I am not sure if Mitchell is playing, but if he is he will have to field close in as his knee is obviously still groggy. So far he always seems to get mid-on with its concomitant trots to the leg boundary.

Craigengower have a blank day also. On the whole the most interesting game will be between the K.C.C. and the Gunners. A good deal depends if Bruce is playing for Kowloon, and also as to whether the Gunners will have a full side. When I last saw him Hazlewood's arm was alright again—his batting makes a good deal of difference to the side. I should not be surprised to see a draw. The weather is so beautifully dull that it is very difficult to get any play after six o'clock.

A Farewell.

To-morrow two cricketers, who have played for the Navy, leave us for Home, H.E. Sir Arthur Waisell and Lt. Comdr. D. P. Evans. Service cricket on a station always has its up and downs, and at present the Navy are hard put to it to field a good side, though they play away gallantly. I fancy that Sir Arthur Waisell is the first C-in-C. for a great many years to turn out for their side, but I know that his appearance was both a great moral encouragement and a very practical help. He was a useful change bowler, and was a bit of the old school, which did not squiggle things away to leg but put their left elbow and the full force of the bat to the bowler and cracked the ball like blazes through the covers. I fear we cannot expect to see him playing cricket here again, but all cricketers will join in wishing him God speed and plenty of good cricket at Pompey. Evans hardly found his form here, but his fielding and his keenness did much for the side. I confidently expect to see him back before I quit the game. "Once a China hand, always a China hand." (Or, if you prefer that reading) "Flags," too, carries our best wishes.

Those League Rules.

The official hour of starting a League Match is 2.15 p.m. There is, of course, no objection to starting at 3 p.m. but it is extremely difficult for all teams except the H.K.C.C. at home, when most of their eleven have tiffin in the pavilion. I have never known the points claimed from a team who are not ready to begin at 2.15 p.m. I am glad to say, though it is a sign of slackness in most cases if they are not ready. But, of course, there are exceptions in everything. It has always been held that two teams cannot agree to play their League engagement as an all-day match. This is quite logical. All matches must have (roughly anyway) the same time limit. I have known many a match lost by bustling for a win, which would have been a gift given a whole day's play.

Rain.

Rule 12 wants re-drafting badly. It says "In case a match is not finished on account of rain, it shall be replayed." Now who is going to interpret the words "is not finished on account of rain." One can easily envisage several situations where there is no doubt. But take the case of a weak side which faces a total of two hundred or so, and by stonewalling has lost only three wickets for, say, sixty ten minutes before time. Then it rains in torrents. They could quite reasonably claim that rain or no rain, they could claim a draw as the match could not have been completed. I think what is required is the addition of the words "The question of the finishing or otherwise of the match owing

H.K.C.C. TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

P. KONG PROGRESSES.

OUR BRITISH STRUGGLE.

Despite the overnight rain, the weather kept sufficiently fine enough yesterday to permit the day's programme to be carried through, ground conditions being on the soft side however.

Paul Kong engaged the attention of the spectators, who saw him matched against J. W. Leonard in the second round of the Open Singles. The match developed into a long drawn out struggle in which Leonard's defensive tactics slowed the pace considerably. Kong showed considerable enterprise, taking a great deal of risk in the opening stages, but finding it costly, he later matched Leonard patiently point for point. He did very well to pull level from 3 down, but disappointed his supporters by losing the first set at 5-7. His better standard of play proved the deciding factor in the second set, in which although meeting with stern opposition, he gave the impression that he certainly was the better player, eventually winning the set at 6-4. Then playing with greater confidence in the final set, he gradually wore Leonard down, to win at 6-1. Kong now meets the winner of the tie Ng Si Kwong v. A. D. Johnson.

In the last match in the first round of the Open Singles, Ho Ka Lou met and defeated Edgo in straight sets, and now meets K. Yoshikawa.

A. D. Humphreys and H. Owen Hughes beat Petch and Deane in a four set struggle, which went to three sets, in the Open Doubles, while the Runjahn cousins had no difficulty whatever in eliminating the Zimmerman brothers in the same event.

The detailed scores of yesterday's matches follow:

GOLF NOTES.

[By GUM.]

The weather is a most useful topic when strangers get together, or when some shy young man, with his lotharianism temporarily suppressed by nervousness, meets youth of the opposite sex, whose aura and his intermingled with a spontaneity which brings palpitations to the heart, but is not always an ice-breaker. So a reference to the weather of early morning last Sunday need not necessarily mean that there is a paucity of subject matter for this week's Notes. The heavy downpour was doubly heaven-sent—an imaginative ear could have heard the blades of grass lapping up the life-giving moisture and, before the day was out, an equally imaginative eye could have discerned the fairways casting aside their mantle of dark brownness in favour of one of green freshness. The hand of man can do much but the absence of rain can undo all that he has done—maybe the new basis of assessing the Liquor Tax will bring some of us into closer association with the beneficial properties of water.

The Fanning "Boy" Championship semi-finals have now been completed, and with the defeat of Robb by Colonel Matthews and Maturin by Eager, the stage is now set for the bout which will decide who is to wear, with pride and pleasure, the 1931 cloak of "Junior" Robb with a margin of 4 and 3 in to be highly commended and it must be most gratifying to him that, though the curtain must shortly fall upon his golfing days, he is yet more than able to hold his own with the youngsters. Old soldiers never die.

It is more difficult than usual to pick out the "chump" in the coming match—who would prophesy where experience and youth are the opponents?

At the week-end the various competitions of the Fanning Ladies section were still in the semi-finals with the exception of the top half of the "Captain's Cup" where Mrs. Cassidy has succeeded in reaching the last bracket—she will meet the winner of Mrs. Keary and Mrs. Langston game. In the "Rose Cup" Mrs. Lambert plays Miss Mackay and Mrs. Evans plays Mrs. Mackay—it is interesting to note that Mrs. Evans' progress has been the unexcitement of two "walk-overs" and then an extremely close match finishing on the 21st green. The "Championship" semi-finalists are Mesdames Cassidy, Lambert, Keary and Newbigging—the first named lady has already secured the "Tangart Cup," will probably snaffle the "Captain's Cup" and a "hat-trick" is therefore in sight.

Mark Anthony held out his test-shot when he stated that it was the evil that men did which lived after them, adding that the good was often interred within the bones—what his views were concerning the ordinary well-behaved mortal he did not divulge, being too busily engaged in dealing out left-handed compliments to Brutus. But we know how fleeting is the memory for those who once dwell in our midst in quiet respectability and, even when, one hears that "Meed Shield" was content for on the Kowloon City links last Sunday, it conjures back little Jimmie Mead to few of us. He was a member of the K.C.C. with which, in his time, was combined a nine hole course in King's Park, on the sites where the present recreation grounds are laid out. The demand for playing fields necessitated the giving up of that course but the Kowloon Golf Club kindly place the links each year at the disposal of the cricketers to allow their combatting for the shield which Jimmie presented. The name inscribed thereon for 1931 is Bruce who, with a generous handicap of 21, was able to return the best score of 71 nett.

The modern world is gay and has little patience for the more serious side of life but there is a sadness in the losing of the identity of the sundry shields and cups which reappear annually on fixture lists.

Bill Orchard, who has occupied the secretarial chair of the Kowloon Club for the past two years, has not been to Vienna although the atmosphere of sudden activity in the little course in the foothills of some kind has taken place. Maybe the easier access to the links has caused this bustle and scurry but whatever the reason, great things are in the air. Firstly, it has been decided that a "waiting-list" must be established forthwith; secondly, the Government and the Military Authorities have been approached with a view to placing the existing nine holes and to providing a further nine; and, (Continued at foot of next column.)

Finally, permission is being sought to build a club-house just behind the No. 1 tee which will afford a pleasant view of the whole course also of the harbour towards Lymoon. Truly, it is an orchard of fruitful ideas.

The Professional Golfers' Association are getting well ahead with their arrangements for the British Ryder Cup team. Twenty-four invitations have been issued and a series of trial games will be held to determine who are to be ultimately selected—a most pleasing feature of these preparations is that the American larger and lighter ball is to be used throughout the trials. A few new conditions attach to the acceptance of representing the Old Country—to wit, the travelling together and the returning home together of all prize money but no hitch is anticipated on account of these provisions.

THE TRIAL OF A. A. ROUSE.

A MOTOR EXPERT ON THE FATAL FIRE.

The following evidence was given by a "fire" expert called by the Crown, at the Trial of Alfred Arthur Rouse, before Mr. Justice Talbot, at Northampton Assizes, for the murder of an unknown man. The charred remains of the deceased were found in Rouse's burnt-out car. The prosecution suggested that Rouse killed the man, and fired the car, hoping that the body would be taken for his own.

Rouse was convicted.

Colonel Cuthbert Buckle, managing director of the firm of Messrs. Ellis and Buckle, Limited, fire assessors, said that he had had 25 years' experience of fires of all kinds. During the last four years his firm had investigated 83 cases of burnt-out cars, of which he had inspected 60.

Describing the most frequent causes of fire in motor-cars, Colonel Buckle said that on the road they mostly occurred when the engine was running. A fire might occur in the case of a car where the engine had been stopped and there was a leakage of petrol which came into contact with an electric spark. It was possible also for a slow fire to begin by the smouldering of the upholstery, which had probably caught fire by the dropping of a lighted cigarette or a lighted match.

He explained in considerable detail the nature of the damage which he found to various parts of Rouse's car. The metal of the gear-box he found to be badly fused, but the flywheel casing, which was of the same material, was not fused.

Mr. Birkett asked Colonel Buckle if he drew any inference as to the source of a fire of that intensity under the car where normally there was nothing to burn.

"Yes, I draw two inferences as to the source," replied the witness. "I think it was fed continuously from the forward part of the body in the vicinity of the petrol tank, and I think it was fed again—I cannot be quite certain, but I am nearly certain of this—that it was fed again from the back end."

"Putting all the wooden body fragments together they would not weigh 10lb," he added. That indicated a good deal as to the fire and that it had burnt for a considerable time.

Mr. Birkett then questioned Colonel Buckle about the wind-screen frame, and the witness stooped down in the witness box and from the door produced the bent wind-screen frame of the car, holding it before him on the ledge of the box as he described his deductions from its remains. The witness said that the bottom of the wind-screen frame was cut through as if by a blow-lamp flame, and the top was cut through at more or less the same place, and nearly cut through at another point.

Mr. Birkett: When you say cut through, are you able to say how by instrument, or fire? By fire, without doubt.

"A Roaring Flame."

Regarding the fish gauge nut, which he also examined, the witness said that to produce the effect which he found it would take him some time to get sufficient heat with a blow-lamp. He was then handed a model of a petrol pipe, union, and cap similar to that on the burnt car. Holding the pipe up, he illustrated how he found the union at the carburettor and loose. It was one whole turn loose.

"I went to the police car and found a union like this on it," he went on, "and gave it three-quarters of a turn. The petrol flowed quite quickly, and it filled an ordinary half-pint tumbler absolutely to the brim in 10 sec."

Mr. Birkett: If the petrol in the tank is subjected to heat what effect would that have on the flow in the loosened union joint?—You would have pressure, and instead of a flow with ordinary pressure you would have extraordinary pressure giving several times the normal flow.

The witness said that petrol from a loosened union would flow on to the floor in front of the passenger near his feet and it would be

Mr. Birkett: Having regard to the wind-screen frame and that loosened joint, when do you say about the fire which caused that effect upon the wind-screen frame?

Holding a piece of string vertically to demonstrate his point, Colonel Buckle said: "When you get a vertical stream of highly inflammable liquid like petrol burning you get a very curious flame structure, a roaring flame, which is very pretty like an ostrich feather. I think there was a stream like that in this wind-screen frame."

Colonel Buckle said that the engine sump was still damp and sticky with the usual accumulation of oil and road dust, which showed that there had been no fire sufficient to dry it up. "To my mind," he said, "that proves there had not been a fire underneath the engine such as there had been further back under the car."

He said he also found that the off-side running board was nearly burnt away from underneath, but that the rubber mat on the surface remained unburnt. The near-side running board was completely burnt away. "I come to the conclusion, from those facts, he said, "that there had been a fierce fire underneath the car."

Colonel Buckle described how he found the union nut in the carburettor pipe one whole turn loose. He had made various tests and was convinced it could not come loose accidentally. While there was no interlocking, it was designed in such a way that it should not come loose while the car was travelling.

Mr. Justice Talbot: It strikes me, as a very ignorant man, that it is so designed that it should not come undone until and unless you require it?—It should be, my Lord.

Mr. Birkett: What do you say about the fire in the back part of the car?

Colonel Buckle: To account for the existence of the fire there, I should require a continuously fed fire.

Having regard to this petrol can in the position in which it was found, what do you say about that as a possible source of supply?—That can has undoubtedly been in the car with petrol in it.

Expert Cross-Examined.

In cross-examination by Mr. Finmore, Colonel Buckle said that he did not agree that the burning through of the floor-board and the upholstery and their falling on to the road would account for the fire under the car.

Mr. Justice Talbot referred to the length of time the fire lasted, and said that with a bonfire it was impossible for it to be fed to be kept alight.

Colonel Buckle said that, judging by the remains of the fire, there was nothing to show the primary cause. It might have been a neck-and-neck race between the man and the petrol stream.

Mr. Finmore, in cross-examination, questioned Colonel Buckle about the source and extent of the fire, and suggested that there was no evidence of any sort that there was a fire under the carburettor before it either burst or melted, or at least something happened to the carburettor itself.

Colonel Buckle replied that he could not say the fire was there before, but it was there at some time. He agreed that the reason for the one fire being intact was that it was due to the effect of the wind blowing the fire away from the wheel.

Mr. Finmore suggested that it was not an unusual thing to find a petrol joint of that sort acting loose.

Colonel Buckle: Getting loose perhaps, but not having half a pint in just under a minute and a half.

Fire and No Explosion.

Mr. Birkett, re-examining, dealt with the possibility of the fire starting under the bonnet, and asked: "If it had started there, would you have expected to see the passenger lying face downwards on the driver's seat?"

Colonel Buckle: I should have expected to see him on the road trying to put the fire out.

What in your view is the only explanation of the intensity of that fire which produced those results?—Sustained leakage of petrol.

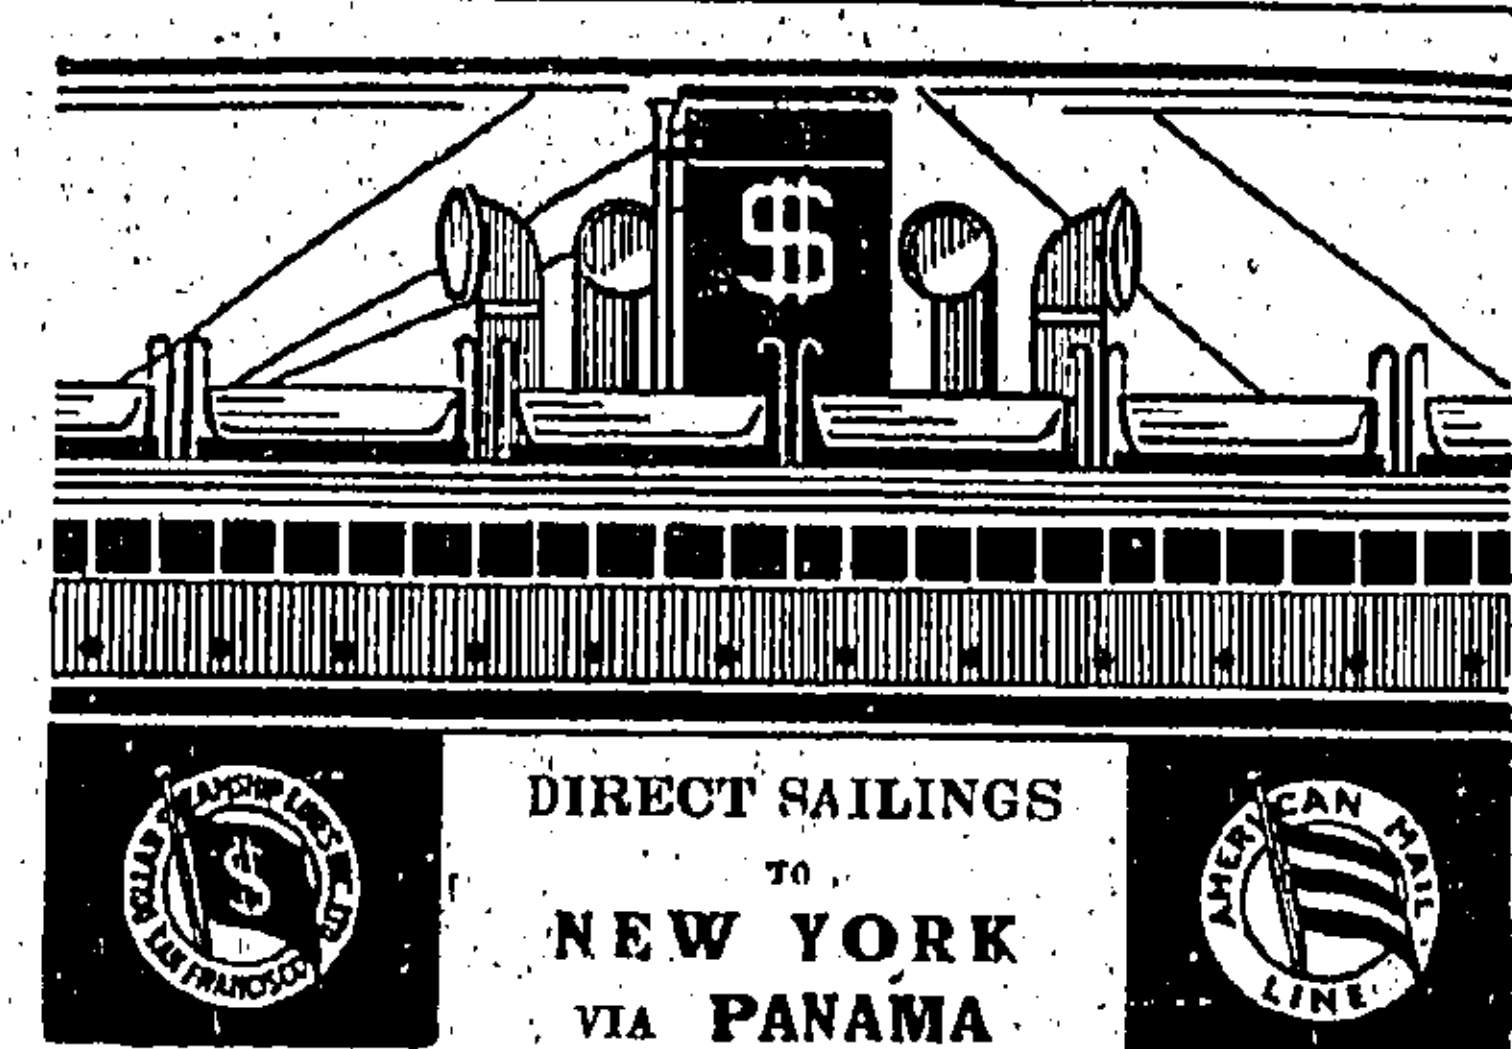

Mr. Birkett: Assuming that you had a leakage of petrol in that way and if a match had ignited the vapour, you would get a fierce explosion?—Yes, the car would be blown to bits and the neighbourhood would hear it for a mile round.

Is it your view from the things you saw that the fire was caused by sustained fire or by an explosion?—By sustained fire.

If there had been an explosion it would have been heard by Brown and Bailey?—Yes, and by the whole village of Hardington.

Colonel Buckle said that there was a possibility of the fire starting in the early stages from a soaked mat, but he was of the opinion that it was almost impossible to get a mat soaked with petrol without the knowledge of the occupant. A person with an ordinary sense of smell would detect it very quickly.

Mr. Birkett: A passenger seated ordinarily in the passenger's seat with the door on his immediate left, and the engine running, would he be so aware that he would not be able to get out?—I think he would be able to get out, but he might be a little burnt.

IN OLD MAJORCA.

MIRACLE PLAY IN THE HILLS.

In the rush and turmoil of modern life it is rare to find a place in the civilised world where the onward march of time has made no change, where old traditions persist, and where customs which have their beginnings in remote antiquity are preserved to-day in all their primitive simplicity. Such a place is the little village of Fornalux, which lies folded in the slopes of the mountains above Soler in the island of Majorca.

Light covered carts, bearing families of Majorca peasants and drawn by horses with jingling bells, wind their way upward, for to-day is the great Fiesta in Fornalux. Here, at Epiphany, every three years, is enacted the second oldest miracle play in Europe, which has been handed down through the ages unchanged. How ancient in its origin can be gathered from the fact that one of the characters is the Sybil, whose part it is to chant the prophecies of Christ's birth—clearly a survival of Greek influence in the Church.

Barrio Stage.
The stage, a rough platform decorated with boughs and drapery and approached by wooden steps, is set in the little Plaza of the village, and the villagers themselves are the solo actors. A little way apart, in the angle of the two walls, a bower of greenery has been placed. Here sits the Purisima—the Virgin, holding the Child: Saint Joseph, portrayed as a young boy, sits on her left, and on her right an angel with wings and diadem.

From the audience, seated on wooden chairs at their doors and on the rough flight of cobbled steps leading to the little church and to the houses on the mountain slopes above, a murmur of excitement arises as the play begins. King Herod and his court, pages, heralds, and soldiers mount the rustic stage and group themselves, and through the crowd of onlookers who press forward to the foot of the platform come riding the three Eastern Kings—Casper, Melchor, and Baltasar—each led by an attendant page and guided by a golden star which, slung on a cord, is drawn in the direction of the Virgin.

Massacre of the Innocents.
The three Kings greet Herod and ask him where is the newborn King for whom they have brought gifts, but Herod in high dudgeon repudiates the birth, and says there is no King but himself. He consults his learned men, two servile, black-robed lawyers who, driven to an answer, admit that there is a prophecy of a king coming, a king who shall rule the world. To frustrate this Herod orders the killing of all male children to the age of three years.

Meanwhile the three Kings, led by the star, are guided to the bower where sits the Purisima and Child. They kneel and make obeisance and offer gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh. Herod returns to the stage, and at his demand the Sybil chants prophecies confirming the coming of the King. The King refuses to accept the prophecy and vows death to any rival King, whereat in sulphurous smoke and flame the Devil emerges from beneath the stage and grapples with him, and after a terrific fight, hurls him over the back of the stage to the flames of Hell, amidst the rapturous applause of the audience.

This ends the play, but a charming sequel follows. The actors mingle with the crowd and the children press forward to touch the Purisima's robe and to gaze with awe on the Holy Child.

The sun is setting behind the mountains, and from the waiting carriages comes the jangle of bells as the impatient horses toss their heads and impatiently await the lengthening shadows enfold the town, with its memory of something simple and unspoiled, of something enduring in a changing world.

WOMEN DOCTORS MAY WED.

BIRMINGHAM'S BAN RESCINDED.

Women doctors undertaking official maternity work in Birmingham are not to resign on marriage.

Recently the Public Health Committee advertised for a woman medical officer for maternity and child welfare work, the appointment to terminate automatically on marriage.

The Birmingham branch of the National Council of Women at once protested, urging that the ban was against the interests of those seeking the help of welfare clinics.

Dame Ethel Shakespeare and Mrs. W. A. Cadbury, representing that body, Dr. Beatrice Webb, for the Birmingham and District Medical Women's Association, accompanied by others, formed a successful deputation to the committee.

After hearing the views of the deputation and reviewing the circumstances the committee stated later that they rescinded their decision, making it open, therefore, for women medical officers to retain their posts on marriage.

R.101 DISASTER INQUIRY.

CERTAIN EXPERIMENTS NOW BEING CARRIED OUT.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

Rugby, Feb. 25.
The Under-Secretary for Air, Mr. F. Montagu, informed the House of Commons to-day that at the request of the Court of Inquiry into the R.101 disaster, certain experiments were being carried out at the National Physical Laboratory with a view to fixing more definitely the cause of the accident.

Very valuable results were expected from these experiments, which are not yet complete. Although most of the inquiry's report is ready, it is impossible to complete it before the experiments are concluded.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ENQUIRY.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

Rugby, Feb. 25.
A meeting of economic experts will begin at Geneva next Monday in connexion with the League of Nations inquiry into the causes of the world economic crisis. Although as yet it is impossible to state when the report of the inquiry will be available, a considerable amount of material has already been collected, and the British delegates at the League meeting, in emphasising the urgency and importance of the inquiry, expressed the hope that the report would be completed before the next Assembly.

INDIAN BUDGET DEFICIT.

NEW TAXATION AND HIGHER DUTIES.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

New Delhi, Feb. 25.
A heavy deficit in the neighbourhood of 15 crores of rupees, is expected to be announced in the Budget Speech on Saturday. French taxation, hitting the entire community is anticipated, including a considerable rise in income tax and an increase in the customs duties on major imports.

TIN RESTRICTION SCHEME.

FINAL ARRANGEMENTS NOT YET SETTLED.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

London, Feb. 25.
Replying to Mr. W. G. A. Omsby-Gore regarding the likelihood of legislation in Nigeria and the Federated Malay States for restricting the output of tin, Dr. Drummond Shiels said that until a meeting arranged at an early date, with the representatives of the Dutch East Indies and Bolivia, had been held, it was impossible to state what steps would be necessary to carry out the proposed scheme.

Three Army officers—Captain H. H. Warren (1st Border Regiment), Lieutenant T. Murray (R.E.) and Second Lieutenant M. M. Davis (1st Duke of Wellington's Regiment) have been selected to attend a course of skiing on the Tatra Pines (Czechoslovakia). A correspondent asks: "If our Army officers are to take courses in skiing, why not in skating, ice hockey and tobogganing? We can find money for this but not for the Schneider Cup, which will raise British trade prestige." The War Office reply is: "The Czechoslovakian Government has not extended three invitations to British officers. Three officers have been chosen. They pay their own expenses and will submit the time they are away from their annual allowance of leave."

SOLICITOR TO PAY DAMAGES.

£725 BREACH OF PROMISE AWARD.

A solicitor in his gown conducted his own case in a proceeding arising out of a breach of promise action in which he was the defendant at the Sheriff's Court at Liverpool Assizes.

He was Mr. Joseph Yearsley, aged thirty-nine, of North John Street, Liverpool, and the action was brought by Miss Doris Monica Smith, aged thirty-eight, of Heath Street, Golborne, Warrington. She was awarded £725 damages and costs.

It was stated that the couple had been courting for ten years. The engagement was broken off within three hours of the time fixed for the wedding, while the wedding breakfast was being prepared at the house of Miss Smith's mother, Mr. Yearsley cancelled the arrangements at the church.

One of the letters written by Mr. Yearsley stated:—
"I am waiting patiently for you to show me the lover's paradise, and I hope I shall be able to increase its charm."

He closed the letter with:—
"Good-bye and a million kisses."

BORN DURING AIR RAID.

"UNCONTROLLABLE CHILD."

A father applied at Ealing Juvenile Court for his 13-year-old daughter to be sent to an industrial school. The girl, he said, suffered from a nervous disorder, having been born during an air raid, when a bomb was dropped at Brentford. She was beyond his control.

It was stated that the girl was spiteful to other children, and that on one occasion she tried to push another child in front of a motor-car. She had been sent to various homes, and had bullied the other children there. She had been removed from one home because those in charge of her could not control her.

A school attendance officer said that the Ealing Education Committee wished to support the father's application.

Remanding the girl to the Princess Mary Village Homes, Addlestone, the Chairman (Alderman H. W. Peal) said, "Whenever you feel you are losing your temper, keep quiet."

The air raid referred to was one in which two houses were destroyed and eight people killed.

"ENGLAND IS NOT DOWN AND OUT."

SIR HARRY GOSCHEN'S PLEA FOR FAIR TREATMENT.

Sir Harry Goschen, who presided at the annual meeting of the National Provincial Bank, Limited, said, in his speech: "England is not yet down and out, and we must have no patience with those who, like people who enjoy bad health, luxuriate in depression and revel in gloomy forebodings."

He expressed the view that our industries must be given a fair and equal chance to compete with other nations if recovery is to come soon. "It is unfortunate," he said, "that our fiscal policy is subject to party discussions and politics. But now that it has been widely recognised that universal free trade is an unobtainable ideal, some measure of protection must and should be extended to our trade, and that at an early date."

"The agricultural industry in particular stands in immediate need of assistance, for agriculture is in a parlous state in England."

60FT. FALL FROM A WINDOW.

FAMOUS PICTURE COLLECTOR'S DEATH.

A wealthy London art-dealer, Mr. Brandon Davis, fell more than 60 feet from a fifth-floor window at Whitehall Court, Horse Guards' avenue, S.W., and was killed.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Davis was at business at his art gallery in Grosvenor-street, W. He complained of feeling unwell and went home to his flat at Whitehall Court.

Mrs. Davis was not at home and was informed of her husband's death by the police, who asked her to go to Westminster Hospital, where she identified the body.

Mr. Brandon Davis, who was about 50, was formerly a partner with M. Paul Guillaume, the famous Paris art dealer.

He was a well-known figure in the West End, and always wore an eye-glass and carried a tortoiseshell-headed cane. He was once described as "always behaving with the courtesy dignity of an aristocrat."

A dispute with regard to the title "The Younger Generation" for a film not founded on the work of the late Mr. W. S. Houghton, author of "Hindle Wakes" and "The Younger Generation," came before Mr. Justice Bennett in the Chancery Division. The film was made in America, and the owners of the copyright in Mr. Houghton's play asked for an injunction to prevent its being exhibited under that title. Mr. Justice Bennett held that although people 18 years ago, on seeing the title might have expected to see a film based on the play, that was not the case to-day. Several people, including Mr. Robert Hale, the well-known actor-manager, said they had never heard of it. Moreover, three films had previously been produced with the same title. The action was dismissed with costs.

The sentence of banishment recently passed on the Pionniers Cinema flower girls has been rescinded. Westminster City Council Works Committee, now state: "Having given further consideration to the matter we are of opinion that the licences held by these flower sellers should be renewed." All the six applicants for renewal of licences were married women. "Times have been very bad for us for many years," said Polly, one of the flower sellers. "First, the hansom cab departed, and then came one way traffic. After that Eros was taken away. People seem to be losing their love for flowers—they are too busy buying cigarettes."

AT THE LONDON ZOO.

INSECT HOUSE NOVELTY.

Fog and the cold spell have caused the death of a well-known
London Zoo favourite—Bumpus, the Siamese gibbon. His cage was usually surrounded by a large and appreciative crowd, for he was wonderfully agile, and to earn tit-bits he was always ready to perform remarkable acrobatic feats, and to add to the entertainment by uttering loud, blood-curdling shrieks.

Bumpus's shrieks were a much-heard Zoo feature, since he was rarely silent, and at all hours of the day night his voice was heard echoing through the Gardens and in many parts of Regent's Park.

Though his howls were an indication of excitement, not distress, they earned for him a considerable amount of well-meant, if misplaced sympathy.

The Insect House has got a new attraction which is arousing great interest, though liable to inspire a "horsey" feeling. It is an exhibition of the larva of various beetles. In one glass-fronted cage a mound of unwholesome and enter-looking ginger is shown; and a close examination of the powder reveals that it is being devoured by a collection of grubs, which are small but visible to the naked eye.

These are the larva of the ginger beetle, and they are demonstrating what happens when ginger is visited by a ginger-beetle. Another cage contains biscuits which are being ravaged by the larva of a beetle that looks like biscuits, while in a third cage a colony of energetic meal worms are busily eating brown breadcrumbs.

After gazing at these larva it is a relief to discover that the brown powder, in which a few large, bloated white grubs are reposing, is merely sawdust. These are the larva of the stag beetle, and they remain in this state eating sawdust in hollow trees for two or three years, before becoming pupae and finally completing their metamorphosis. And happily, the three-inch grub, which looks like a bloated shell-less white prawn, does not attack foodstuffs, but is the grub of a large tropical moth.

This new feature of the Insect House is well done, especially as mounted specimens of the beetle, its pupa and its larva, are placed under the cage containing the live grubs.
